FOUR PERISH IN FIRE IN TENEMENT HOUSE

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 14.—A mother and three small children were burned to death here early today when fire destroyed a tenement house.

Firemen discovered the tragedy when the blaze had been extinguished. The bones of an adult and three children were found in the smoking ashes.

The dead persons were tentatively identified as Mrs. Hattie Millhouse, 30, her two young children and another small girl who was known to have been spending the night with the Millhouse children.

Firemen thought all residents of the tenement had escaped from the building.

TRUCE DECLARED BY WARRING FACTIONS AT STATE COLLEGES

Heidelberg To Renew Battle; To Demand More Freedom

By International News Service

A "cease firing" order was being observed today—temporarily at least—by warring factions in uprisings and disturbanres on the campuses of four Ohio colleges and universities.

The threat of renewed hostilities was greatest at Heidelberg college at Tiffin where men students were quietly drawing up resolutions demanding that dancing, card-playing and smoking be allowed on the campus.

Reappointment of Dr. Newell Sawyer, popular English professor, which was the first demand made in a threatened revolt, has become a secondary issue, leaders declared.

Going on record as opposed to such vandalism as resulted in the burning of an athletic field ticket booth on the campus yesterday, Heidelberg men held a mass meeting and decided to submit their resolutions for new social privileges to the student body and then present them to the board of trustees.

Opponents of compulsory military training awaited the outcome of a faculty meeting at Ohio State University this afternoon when petitions requesting that R. O. T. C. classes be made optional will be presented.

Akron University's campus was quiet again following an order from President George F. Sook suspending Ray Bliss following the sifting of charges of ballot stuffing in a recent May Queen election.

Bliss went to the president and "completely exonerated" Miss Ellen Palmer of any connection with the so-called election fraud. Miss Palmer and Miss Agnes McGowan, however, were ordered by the president to take eight extra hours of work, meaning their graduation will be delayed a semester.

Marietta police were still without knowledge of the names of persons who stoned the Delta Upsilon fraternity house at Marietta College after a stormy election in which Miss Sarah Leake of Lowell, O., was elected president of the student body, but admitted they suspected rival candidates.

THREE INJURED AS AUTO HITS TRUCK

WASHINGTON C. H., O., May 14.—Three Pittsburgh men enroute to the Kentucky derby were injured, one critically near here today when their automobile struck a truck and swerved off the road into a ditch.

Kenneth Lembacher, 35, suffered a fractured skull and may die. His brother, Ray, 37, and Elmer Cour, 30, received severe lacerations.

All three were rushed to Mt. Carmel Hospital at Columbus, 30 miles away, for treatment. Two other men, also from Pittsburgh, who were making the trip, escaped injury.

DENIED NEW TRIAL

COLUMBUS, O., May 14.—Executive clemency today was the only hope of John Williams, Middletown negro sentenced to die in the electric chair May 21 for the murder last October of Isaac Byron, Middletown grocer. Ruling that no constitutional question was involved, the Supreme Court yesterday refused to hear his appeal for a new trial.

WOMAN IS MAYOR

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., May 14.—Mrs. Clara E. Grayert, 72, today doffed her apron and broom to become mayor of this city. She was sworn in as executive last night to succeed her husband, who at the time of his death on April 20 had completed twenty-one years as mayor.

"I have no intention of pursuing a program of political reform," Mayor Grayert announced, "but I intend to give special attention to the playground system."

DIPLOMAT BEATEN

Although Dr. Carlos Levia, counselor and charge d'affaires of the legation of El Salvator, in Washington, is inclined to make light of the affair, government officials are startled at the effrontery of hi-jackers who raided the legation and beat up Dr. Levia. He surprised them as they were trying to carry away diplomatic liquor. The diplomat was taken to a hospital to be treated for head wounds apparently inflicted with the butt of a gun.

PAIR SENTENCED TO LIFE IN KIDNAPING OF BANK OFFICIAL

Jury Ignores Mercy Plea; Third Gets Twenty Years

CINCINNATI, O., May 14—The maximum penalty—life imprisonment in Ohio Penitentiary—had been ordered today for two men convicted by the state of kidnaping a bank cashier and trying to force him to help them open a vault after holding him captive all night.

Harry Zenz of Carthage, and Lloyd Hebenstreit, formerly of Reading, but now serving a term in the penitentiary for another offense, were found guilty of a attempted robbery of the Reading Bank last June within two hours after the case went to the jury.

Refusing to recommend mercy, the jury made life terms mandatory.

Suggesting that a lighter penalty be given Walter Flory, 20-year-old accomplice, because of his youth, the jury's verdict carried with it a term of not less than twenty years.

Zenz, Hebenstreit and Flory were charged with visiting the home of cashier H. A. Greene the night before the attempted robbery and making captives of the cashier and his family.

Early the next morning, after binding Green's wife and daughter, they took the cashier to the bank and tried to compel him to open the vault, according to testimony on which they were convicted.

When they found that the vault could not be opened because of a time lock, they robbed Greene of all of his personal funds and took a revolver which they found in the bank, it was said, escaping when notified that their presence had been discovered by police.

DENIES REPORTS OF MORROW NUPTIALS

BATON ROUGE, La., May 14.—Miss Myrtice Roddy of Clinton La., continued today to deny reports that her brother, the Rev. Clyde Roddy, pastor of a Presbyterian Church at Arlington, N. J., is engaged to marry Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of Senator Dwight Morrow and sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

When first asked about the engagement reports last night, Miss Roddy went so far as to say she had been invited to the wedding. Later however, she denied knowing anything about the engagement and said her original statement was due to a misunderstanding.

COMMISSIONERS PROTEST PAVING

HIGHWAY DIRECTOR SAYS CONTRACT FOR PIKE PAVING SIGNED

Committee Calls On White And Merrell; Hint Injunction

"On behalf of the majority of the people, residents of Greene County, particularly along the Dayton-Xenia Pike, we most emphatically protest a proposed paving of this pike with macadam. The people want concrete."

This telegram was sent Thursday morning by Greene County Commissioners to State Highway Director O. W. Merrell. The director recently disregarded the recommendations of County Commissioners, County Surveyor W. J. Davis and abutting land owners by awarding the contract for repaving three and two-tenths miles of the Dayton-Xenia Pike with macadam in preference to concrete. The cost difference was only $4,000.

The wave of protest which swept Greene County following announcement of the decision resulted Wednesday in a committee of three men visiting Columbus to formally complain.

The committee composed of City Auditor H. A. Higgins, W. T. Naragon, mayor of Osborn, and Harry C. Sohn, Xenia, obtained an audience with Governor George White. The chief executive during a twenty-minute interview, expressed himself as being ignorant of the details of the contract

UNIVERSITY HEAD IS DEAD

Baylor President Is Taken By Death

WACO, Tex., May 14.—The career of a man who rose from section hand to the presidency of one of the largest educational institutions in the southwest was closed today when death claimed Dr. S. P. Brooks, head of Baylor University. He died at 1:15 a. m. from cancer. He was 67 years old.

Doctors despaired of his life two weeks ago and told him he had only a few days to live.

With death facing him, Dr. Brooks decided that as a last act he wanted to sign the diplomas for the next graduating class at Baylor. His physicians advised against it, but he insisted and affixed his signature on more than 300 of them before he became too weak to complete the task. The effort he put into the work hastened his death.

GLASS WORKS OWNER COMMITS SUICIDE

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 14.—J. George Lehman, 55-year-old wealthy owner of the Bethlehem Glass Works, was found shot to death in the library of his palatial home today by a maid. A bullet, police said fired by the dead man, had penetrated his brain entering the right temple.

Relatives and friends of Lehman could give no motive for his suicide. Police were equally mystified.

BANDITS ROUTED

CHICAGO, May 14.—Police Sergt. Walter Blossey today surprised five bandits in an attempt to rob the Roosevelt Trust and Savings Bank in Forest Park, a suburb, engaged in a gun battle with the quintet, and routed them. Two of the bandits were believed wounded.

PROBE SHOOTING OF EX-PRODIGY

Mystery surrounds the fatal shooting in New York of Roy Herbert Sloane, 26, whose scholastic ability as a boy prodigy presaged a successful career, but who turned criminal. He studied law in Sing Sing prison, achieving his own release, only to be caught at an alleged robbery attempt a short time later. Sloane was fatally shot either as he was entering or leaving an alleged speakeasy in New York. His mother, Mrs. Anna Bogenholm Sloane, an authority on East India and writer of educational books, collapsed when she learned of her son's death. Above, mother and son.

REPORT GENERAL HARBORD MAY SUCCEED FESS AS G. O. P. CHIEF

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The latest political rumor in Washinton is that Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, who retired from the army to direct the Radio Corporation of America, is being considered for the chairmanship of the Republican national committee.

The chairmanship is now held by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who is willing, even eager, to relinquish the job. Fess left the capital some days ago for Ohio. He said then that he didn't know how much longer he would be chairman, but that the period couldn't be too short to suit him. He indicated that it was all up to President Hoover.

Gen. Harbord's name is only one of a dozen that have cropped up in discussion of the chairmanship in recent weeks. There has been talk of "Dave" Mulvane, national committeeman from Kansas; Ex-senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas; Ray Benjamin of California, who now has a desk in the committee headquarters, and is supposed to be Mr. Hoover's personal representative, and others.

Mr. Hoover is reported to have urged Benjamin to accept the job, but the Californian is said to be reluctant to take it for business reasons He is an attorney who is building up a governmental practice in Washington, and his work on the committee is a sideline.

Whether Gen. Harbord has been actually offered the chairmanship has not been ascertained. His friends here, however, expect him to retire from the Radio Corporation before long.

The time is rapidly approaching, when a really active chairman of the committee will have to take hold and start the buildup for the '32 campaign. There are major questions of organization and finance to be decided. One of the prime requisites sought in a new chairman is his ability to raise campaign funds.

Gen. Harbord has been active in the Republican affairs of New York City since his retirement from the army. He has, too, many contacts in banking and business circles which might prove of value when it came to financing a campaign. His ability as an organizer is too well known for comment. He was Gen. Pershing's right hand man in organizing the gigantic service of supply in support of the A. E. F. His work for the Radio Corporation has been similarly marked with success.

BELIEVE LOVE PACT CAUSED DEATHS OF COUPLE AT DAYTON

Think Man Killed Girl; Then Self, By Agreement

DAYTON, O., May 14.—In the belief that Nathan Ray, 35-year-old engineer, and Oneida Sorber, 30, wrought their deaths in a suicide pact, authorities today pried into the lives of the pair, seeking a motive for their act.

The bullet-pierced bodies of the couple were found yesterday at a lonely spot along the conservatory dam near Germantown, where they had driven, it was believed, with the intention of ending their lives.

The automobile in which Ray and Miss Sorber drove to the conservatory dam was borrowed from C. H. Thomas of Dayton. The couple did not explain where they were going when they asked the loan of the car, Thomas told authorities.

Investigation revealed, officials said, that Ray shot Miss Sorber, and then discharged the weapon, a shotgun, into his own body by placing it against the stump of a tree and jerking the trigger with a twig.

Ray was divorced. He has a child attending Roosevelt school, it was learned.

PLANES ARRIVING FOR AIR CORPS MANEUVERS AT FAIRFIELD FRIDAY

Value Of Commercial Airports Will Be Given Test

FAIRFIELD, O., May 14.—Encouraged by better flying weather than they had yesterday, pilots of 600 army airplanes, temporarily delayed at airports all over the country, today continued their flights here for the opening tomorrow of the annual army air maneuvers.

All are to be concentrated here by noon tomorrow to begin a study of maps of the Chicago and Detroit area which they are to "defend" next week.

National Guard planes from eighteen states were expected to be the first to arrive today. Ninety-nine such ships were held up yesterday by weather reported unsatisfactory for flying east of Illinois.

At least 100 planes were en route from San Antonio, Tex. Fifty-seven pursuit planes were scheduled to stop first at Fort Sill, Okla., and St. Louis. The remainder, transport and observation ships, headed for Shreveport, La.

Galveston sent forty-eight attack ships and twenty-nine bombers were en route from Dallas. Sixty-five pursuit planes started from Omaha and at least ten observation planes were on the way from Kansas City.

Maneuvers in New York and Washington will follow the defense of middle western cities, according to present plans.

DAYTON, O., May 14.—America's power behind the throne of national defense in the air—her system of commercial airports—will have a chance to prove their mettle during the army air corps maneuvers beginning at Fairfield tomorrow.

Many of the "ships" in the giant formation of 672 planes that will swing northward and eastward to the Atlantic seaboard from Wright Field will use commercial airports during maneuvers in much the same manner such ports would be

SPAIN DISCREDITS REGIME OF ALFONSO

MADRID, May 14.—With virtually all of Spain under military rule in an effort to prevent bloodshed and further outrages against the Catholic Church, the Republican government went forward today with sweeping plans to discredit former King Alfonso in the eyes of the Spanish people.

On the heels of new anti-clerical rioting which necessitated the imposition of martial law at Badajos, the government ordered confiscation of all properties of the exiled king and launched an investigation of his acts since his institution of a dictatorship under General Primo De Rivera in September, 1923.

BRIAND COLLAPSES AFTER DEFEAT; PAUL DOUMER IS ELECTED

Foreign Minister To Represent France At League Meet

PARIS, May 14.—Despite his defeat in the presidential elections, Aristide Briand will leave for Geneva tonight to represent France at the League of Nations council meeting as its foreign minister, it was announced following a cabinet meeting here today.

Briand will remain throughout the entire session, the announcement said, although he has signified his desire of resigning owing to his defeat at the hands of M. Paul Doumer, president of the senate and now thirteenth chief executive of the French Republic.

Political observers predict he will again submit his resignation when the league session is over.

The sensational defeat of M. Briand at the hands of the national assembly overshadowed by far the victory of M. Doumer, who will now take office as successor to Gaston Doumergue—the "Smiling Gastonnet" who has inhabited the Elysee palace for the last seven years.

To M. Briand himself it came as a severe shock. Returning to his Paris apartment seemingly almost a broken man, he collapsed. His Valet De Chambre told International News Service the veteran statesman had fallen in a faint, caused partly by the exertions attendant upon the elections and partly by the crushing disappointment he suffered.

No anxiety was felt over his condition, and it was not deemed necessary to send for a physician.

Commentators seeking to determine the actual reason for M. Briand's crushing defeat delved deep into the psychology of the French people and the French parliament. Nearly all agreed that it was the vociferous support of the Socialist party which militated chiefly against Briand's election, for in spite of the fact that France is a well established Republic, the people retain many aristocratic traditions left in the wake of the Bourbon regime.

In addition, parliament has had a traditional dislike of placing in the Elysee palace a man of great popular appeal. The position has always been one of self-effacement, for which M. Briand is held hardly qualified.

BANK OF ENGLAND REDUCES RATE

LONDON, May 14.—The Bank of England today reduced its rediscount rate from 3 to 2½ per cent.

The reduction was expected in view of the recent rate cut by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, bringing that institution's rate to the lowest level in history.

POLICE AND TROOPS PATROL STREETS TO BAR DISTURBANCES

Report Casualties; Demonstrators Ruin Rail Equipment

CAIRO, May 14.—Cairo and its environs were paralyzed today by a series of riots and disturbances which followed opening of the polls in the general elections.

Police were forced to fire upon rioters time and again. Four rioters were known to have been injured in one clash, but the intense confusion prevented an adequate check-up of the casualties. At least one fatality was reported.

One of the principal disorders occurred at the Bulak railway yards, where political agitators influenced workers to acts of sabotage.

Many locomotives and other machinery were damaged by the demonstrators, paralyzing traffic. Only a few trains were able to run on schedule.

Heavy detachments of troops and police were rushed to the yards. They found 3,000 railway employes and 4,000 arsenal workers proceeding with systematic destruction of machinery. Emergency calls were sent in for additional troops.

Spasmodic rioting was reported throughout Cairo and its suburbs, with police taking violent measures to disperse groups of determined demonstrators. Scores of shots rang out as police fired above the heads of the crowds.

The government of Premier Sidky Pasha expressed itself confident of dealing with the situation, precipitated by a boycott of the election by the Wafd and Liberal parties, whose leaders accused the government of forcing voting.

With hundreds of police and troops patrolling the street, the city resembled an armed camp, the dispatches reported. Serious disturbances also were reported in the provinces.

The demonstrations were the result of a boycott called by the Wafd (Nationalist) and Liberal parties, whose leaders accused the government of Premier Sidky Pasha of attempting to force voting.

TWO GIRLS DIE AT CROSSING

Sisters Killed When Train Hits Auto

GREENVILLE, O., May 14.—Two girls who attempted "to beat a train to the crossing" in their automobile, according to witnesses, were almost instantly killed near here today when they lost the race.

The victims of the accident were Esther Burns, 22, and her sister, Thelma, 24. They were on their way to work at a garment factory here.

According to the grade crossing watchman, the girls speeded their car as they approached the crossing in an effort to beat a fast Pennsylvania passenger train.

The train picked up the automobile just as the light car leaped on the tracks. The machine was completely demolished by the impact. Its occupants were badly mangled, and killed almost instantly.

Beauty and Brains

Unanimously chosen as Europe's most beautiful girl by a committee of 24 judges, Miss Aliki Diplerskos, 19-year-old Greek visitor to Del Mnote, Calif., declared that she has no time for Hollywood and the film factories. Miss Diplerekos has but one ambition, she wants to be an author.

PRISONER TAKEN TO CLARK COUNTY FOR TRIAL FOR ROBBERY

Raymond Massie was transferred Wednesday from the Greene County jail to the Clark County jail to await arraignment on a highway robbery charge in connection with the holdup of a Kroger grocery at South Charleston in March.

Massie was not indicted by the last Greene County grand jury for participating in the holdup of the Green Owl Tea Room and filling station near Cedarville on the same day as the Kroger grocery robbery.

The day following their capture, Massie and two companions, John Ellsworth Quincy, and James Cox, St. Paris, were indicted by a Clark County grand jury.

Cox and Ellsworth were recently indicted for the tea room robbery by the Greene County grand jury, and pleaded guilty. Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy is expected to sentence them this week.

After the grand jury failed to indict Massie a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated was filed against him. When he pleaded guilty he was fined and sentenced to jail.

Should Massie escape conviction in Clark County, he will probably be returned to Greene County and his case presented to the next grand jury.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 week. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but is was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly, Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa. Oct. 31, 1930.

SOHIO TESTS THE TEMPER OF 'HEAT-TEMPERED' GASOLINES

by FLOYD GIBBONS

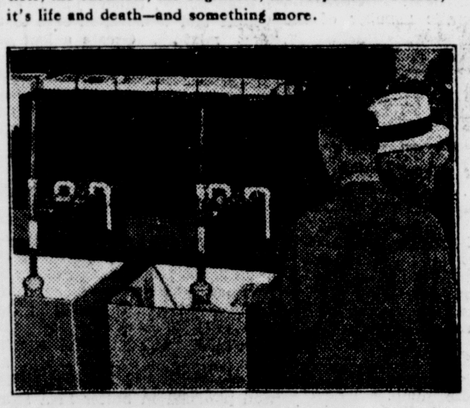
HELLO EVERYBODY!

When you come right down to it, I don't suppose the boys out at that Sohio refinery are exactly what you could call careless in any of their operations. No, sir—it wouldn't pay'em to be.

Heat-tempering steel—from all I hear—isn't the softest and safest job in the world. But heat-tempering gasoline—jamming it up ahead of a pressure that runs a half a ton to the square inch—busting its molecules with heats that would make the noonday Sahara sun look like an iceberg—that sure is all the same as playing with matches around the TNT barrel.

From top to bottom of the Sohio manufacturing organization, "Watch Your Step" is the password of the day and the countersign of the night. With the lads in dungarees—the oil-boiling imps of that twentieth century Inferno—constant caution is a matter of life and death. With the white collar boys, the Sohio research scientists, the chemists, the engineers, the responsible bosses, it's life and death—and something more.



Gibbons gets an eye-full of the check-and-double-checking tests on Sohio heat-tempered gasolines.

Between shudders, while I was being shown how heat-tempered Sohio X-70 is squeezed and massaged and pot-roasted until there isn't a knock left in its system—between shudders, out there at the plant, I estimated that the bosses have to be just about twice as careful as the hands.

You see, in a dollars-and-cents way they're walking a tight-rope They've got to bring their crude oil through 1800 miles of pipe-line from the mid-continent fields, for one thing—and the cost of that underground trolley-ride is practically twice as much as the cost of the crude at the well. Even before they installed that mighty and marvelous new apparatus that makes heat-tempered gasoline possible, they were working on an unbelievably narrow margin of profit. And now their determination to put heat-tempered gasoline in your tank for the same price you'd pay for ordinary gasoline—that means that a slip anywhere along the line would be just TOO BAD!

By a wonderful trick of passing heat from oils that have already been fried on both sides, to oils on their way to the chefs—by running the new heat-tempering "circuit" through the same devil's cauldron which must be kept blazing night and day for other routine operations—by adapting and improving packing-house methods of using everything but the squeal—the molecule-busters can make the Ohio public a present of the anti-knock qualities they have blistered into Sohio's two heat-tempered gasolines.

It's a case of care—more care—from the minute the crude starts for its own comparatively mild Turkish bath, until the final act of mayhem has been done to the molecules in those great forged-steel cracking coils.

But if you ask me where the most care is taken in that whole hell-roaring Sohio works—well, boys and girls, I'd say without a second's hesitation that it's in the testing laboratories. There, a flock of gimlet-eyed scientists stand guard against a final danger—and incidentally a danger that the Sohio folks showed themselves more skittish about than any other one on the lot.

By jingo, when I first walked into that busy laboratory,

"Every drop 100% O.K.," the driver tells Gibbons as the Sohio tank-truck starts out with a cargo of heat-tempered gasoline.

it looked to me like some millionaire fish-fancier's private aquarium. There were glass bowls and tanks all over the place—hundreds and hundreds of them.

But something seemed to have happened to the exhibits. There wasn't a fish in sight. My guide—one of those tall-browed Sohio research scientists—grinned all over his face as I stared around.

"No," he said, "not a minnow in the house. It's gasoline in the tanks, not water."

Then he went on to tell me about how heat-tempered Sohio gasolines were checked and double-checked at every possible point of contamination, from the moment they came from the condenser with their molecules lifted to the moment they gushed from the filling-station pump.

Not a tank-car leaves the refinery until a sample has been drawn from it, and has proved itself in the laboratory to be up to the Sohio standard. Never a tank-truck of Sohio's Great Red Fleet is permitted to pass out the gates until the heat-tempered gasoline it carries can be guaranteed up to par.

And that's only the beginning. Scouts are eternally whirling around the state, popping up unexpected at filling-stations, tapping the pumps and sending the samples back to the laboratory for analysis.

"That," said my guide, "is to see that no inferior gas ever gets too close to that Sohio sign."

I took another look at the fishless fish-bowls, and another look at the scientific check-and-double-checkers working among them—and suddenly something struck me as all out of joint.

"Wait a second!" I said. "You told me that this heat-tempering doesn't make any chemical change in gasoline."

"Right," nodded the Sohio sorcerer. "It's a change of molecular structure. That's what we check up in this laboratory. Molecular structures."

I swung a fast one on him: "But everybody's been telling me that molecules are too small to see, even under the most powerful microscope. Then how the dickens can these birds tell one molecule from another?"

My highbrow pal laughed.

"It's a theory," he said. "Still a theory, even for all our excellent proofs. A theory that a man usually has to put in about four years' study to understand. And also it's a theory that has stood every test to date. The results we get in the laboratory are always verified in practice."

It was getting late. Dusk had come. Whistles were blowing. I said:

"Brother, you've got me hypped. Could you spare me about four minutes' worth of that four year course—and tell me anything with a point in the four minutes?"

He could, and he did. Before the echoes of the whistles had died away he was off into one of the dog-gonedest fascinating explanations of scientific sleight-of-hand I ever listened to.

With a diagram sketched on the back of an envelope he actually succeeded in getting it into my skull that Sohio's ace of oil-boilers can do about anything with the atoms in those heat-tempered molecules that a kid can do with building blocks. I mean, in the way of building 'em up, and tearing 'em down, and changing 'em around.

Yes, sir—inside the four minutes he had put me next to the very core of Sohio's heat-tempering secret. On the square, boys and girls, I meant to spill it at this session. But if I went on and wrote what I learned in those spectacular four minutes, the printers would have to be setting type in the margins and all over the art-work.

So what do you say if we save it for next time? Okay. See you next week, all. And until then—save that four minutes!

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Hatred stirreth up strifes: but love covereth all sins. In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found: but a rod is for the back of him that is void of understanding. — Proverbs, x, 12, 13.

FORGOTTEN ELEMENT

One important aspect of the question they debated seems to have received little or no direct attention from the speakers before the American Law Institute, who discussed the question of the use of firearms against offenders or suspects resisting arrest, and in particular against defiers of the prohibition law. A participant, Professor William E. Mikell, of the University of Pennsylvania, thought that the right of an officer to kill or wound should be limited "to capital offenses." Others were more liberal, and Professor John E. Waite, of the University of Michigan, held that the right of the officer of shoot should "be extended to include all offenses."

But none of the speakers, whether extremists or middle-of the-roaders, whether sympathizers with the prohibition law or otherwise, seemed to take into account the painful fact that in many cases the officer seeking to make an arrest isn't in a position to decide whether he is going to use his gun or not, because the fugitive decides the point for him by pulling a weapon and blazing away. Then a return of the fire becomes a matter of self-defense.

Something can be done to restrain over-eager or bloodthirsty officers who are inclined to shoot at the first provocation. We think Newton Baker was picturing a condition he would like to see rather than the one which exists, when he said he never knew of an officer shooting wantonly—but it will be quite hopeless to set down any hard and fast rule of the sort Dr. Mikell advocates until a successful campaign for internal disarmament of the country has been carried through.

As long as some millions of people habitually tote pistols and a whole lot of people shoot fellow human beings with as little compunction as they would shoot any dog or cat, the war between the forces of law and order and the forces of crime is going to be carried on with deadly weapons, rule or no rule.

ARE THEY INCLUDED?

Following the indorsement by Dean Clarence W. Mendell, of Yale, of the undergraduate campaign of the Crusaders in his school, comes a statement by President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton, who likewise favors the activities of the organization among pupils in the college over which he presides. President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia, long has fought the Eighteenth amendment in both political and scholastic circles. And so we find a rather strategically located triumvirate of school men lining up for relief from the bone dry laws now technically in force in this country. And there is no reason to suppose that they stand alone among college officials in feeling that a change from the prohibition amendment is necessary to the best good of the nation, and in particular is necessary to the best good of the young people under their care.

Does Bishop Thomas Nicholson include these gentlemen among the nefarious "group of millionaires and society people who are determined to have their liquor," and are furnishing "all the noise" made by the wets?

"The Democracy is moving ahead beautifully," says the Atlanta Constitution. "Its only danger is that some blamed fool in the crew will rock the boat." And, unfortunately for the Democracy, that is always a large danger when it embarks on one of its quadrennial voyages to try to make the White House.

Over the wire comes the news that General Smedley Butler has a sore throat. But we are going to let you make your own joke about that.

Other Editorial Thoughts

SPEAKING OF TOLERANCE

Conversation about tolerance is plentiful in these days; but, unfortunately, as in time past. a considerable part of it comes from those who are more concerned about tolerance for their own particular ideas or schemes than they are about tolerance for the ideas and schemes of others. Probably there would be some difficulty in proving that the spirit of genuine tolerance is much more prevalent than it was in the days when the stake, the ax or the wheel, to say nothing of the rack and thumbscrew, were rewards for those who dared to think or act independently in the open, and in defiance of prevailing beliefs and customs.

It is true that we do not torture or burn people for religious, political and economic heresies, at least it is not done in this corner of the world, but that is because we have become more humane, not because we have acquired more tolerance of spirit than our ancestors had.

If genuine tolerance were the order of the day in the United States many of our vexatious political and governmental difficulties would lose most of their vexatiousness. High tariff and low tariff people, world court and anti-world court people, so-called radicals and so-called conservatives, could get together amicably, iron out many misunderstandings and arrive at many sensible working agreements, if it were not for silly prejudices and intolerances. or in some instances if it were not for an intolerant declination to concede fair play to an opposition because it is an opposition.

In the religious world we have the intolerance of the fundamentalist, who would ban the dissemination of modernism. and in particular of evolutionary ideas, by law, and the counter intolerance of the modernist, who revenges himself by jeering at the fundamentalist and crying down his religious beliefs. On the moral side, we have the intolerance of the puritan who undertakes to regulate private lives with the aid of a multiplicity of laws. and the retaliatory intolerance of the loose living who deride individual decency and try to deny other people the right to live in an atmosphere of public decency.

Happily there are exceptions to this order of things. The new relationship that has grown up widely between intelligent capital and intelligent labor is a notable one. Probably never before in the history of this country, or of any other country, was there as much reciprocal tolerance between employers and employes as there is in the United States at this time. This has come, not in any mysterious or esoteric way, not as the result of the adoption of some extraordinary formula for the cure of industrial ills, but as the result of a sensible effort by reasoning men to get together and understand each other's viewpoints, problems and rights. There has been give and take between man and man, and a consequent understanding and sympathy. That is the reason negotiations and settlements become more and more prevalent, and strikes fewer and fewer. If some other elements in the country would study the history of the relations of capital and labor and would profit by the lessons to be learned from the study. this country would gain a great deal in things it very much needs.—Detroit Free Press.

The furthest north in friendship was encountered by Dr. W. E. Whereupon The Bibulous One removed his own new $12 Spring lid and tossed it into the water.

"What on earth did you do that for?" said the Doc.

"Thash aw' ri'" replied the temporarily exhilarated lad: "I'm humiliatin' 'at dam wind 'at blew your hat off, see?"

Approximately one hundred persons a month meet death in New York as a result of automobile accident—most of them pedestrians.

The city is beautifully covered by a network of traffic lights to which men and women on foot pay but scant heed. They labor under the impression that the lights are only for drivers.

In the heart of the theatrical district at night, on very busy corners, it requires the close attention of eight policemen to keep the mobs back of the curb until "the lights are with them,"

One of these cops turned his back the other night to devote a moment's time to a recalcitrant taxi driver, and a female pedestrian stepped off the sidewalk directly in front of a purring sedan rolling merrily along to the tune of about 35-an-hour.

The cop walked up to the woman. He stood in front of her and addressed his remarks to the planet Jupiter twinkling dimly through the Broadway murk.

"I dunno what Gawd give 'em brains fer," he said. "But I guess I hadn't oughta kick. If their heads was a restin' place fer brains, I wouldn't have a job—get there on th' sidewalk!"

Police Captain Jimmy Gillen of the Coney Island station has applied for retirement.

Years ago the Cap. achieved fame by his ability to estimate the size of beach crowds, at a single glance.

He'd stand on tiptoe, look out over the throng and say:

"About 550,000 on th' beach an' 100,000 in th' water."

No one ever questioned his figures—not even inferentially, by referring to them as Guesstimates. Some said he counted the legs of the bathers and divided by two.

But he never revealed his system and he's carrying the secret with him, into retirement.

THE LATEST EFFORT TO RELIEVE THE FARMER

DEPORTATION OF MOTHER BORN IN STATES AROUSES WOMEN'S PARTY

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor William N. Doak's wholesale deportation-of-aliens program not only hit a snag, but indications are that it will prove to have been a very bad snag, when Detroit immigration officials recently banished American-born Mrs. Lillian Larsh to Canada with her four fatherless small daughters, one of them also American-born.

There have been complaints for some time of almost intolerable brutality in the Doak labor administration's method of ridding the country of foreigners accused of having entered it illegally.

These complaints have not made much impression hitherto, however —partly, perhaps, because aliens seldom have any friends or influence or enough money to defend themselves; certainly in large part because American labor looks, in the main, with an approving eye upon Secretary Doak's activities, and labor casts too many votes to be lightly disagreed with by the average politician.

But the Larsh case is different. It already has been so fully outlined that just a paragraph doubtless will serve as a reminder of its details—

That the lately-deported woman was born and brought up in Michigan is not disputed, but she lost her citizenship in 1917 by marrying William Larsh, a Canadian. She would retain it under the present law, but not then. Once lost, the change in law did not restore it to her. For awhile the Larshes lived in Detroit; then in Canada; then returned to Detroit—illegally, according to the labor department. Six months ago Larsh died, leaving his family destitute. The widow was notified on April 23 that she must quit the United States. Two days later the immigration service actually shipped her with her brood to Wallaceburg (Ont.) The oldest girl, Lorraine, aged 11, being a native American, could not have been forced upon Canadian charity, but dominion officials, unequal to the harshness of separating her from her mother, accepted her.

There is no especial reason for assuming that there is anything more remarkable in the Larsh case than in an indefinite number of other deportations (quite likely there are hundreds as remarkable, if the public did but know it), but it happens that the Larsh case particularly touches the sensibilities of the National Woman's party, in that Mrs. Larsh was deportable because she is a woman; a man, American-born, did not lose his citizenship even under the old law, by wedding an alien. The old law drew that distinction between men and women, and while it was a distinction which congress has since removed, the labor department held that it was not removed as to folk in Mrs. Larsh's position.

Now the National Woman's party's sole mission in political life is to secure absolute legal and economic equality for men and women.

Hence, hardly had the news of Mrs. Larsh's deportation reached the party's headquarters in Washington than the feminist group's national chairman, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, called on Secretary Doak for an explanation.

The labor department's version of the affair turned out to be anything but satisfactory to the Woman's party management.

It was furnished by Assistant Secretary Robe Carl White, whose account was that Detroit immigration officialdom had no option; it did what the law prescribes, and there was nothing else it could do.

The truth is, rejoins Mrs. Burnita Matthews, chairman of the lawyers' council of the woman's party, that Mrs. Larsh easly could have been given an opportunity to reestablish her citizenship, had the authorities wished her to have such a chance.

Supplementing Mrs. Matthews' statement, Miss Muna Lee, director of the party's national activities, points out that the labor folk take plenty of time with their deportations whenever they choose; sometimes hold them up for weeks; often permit illegally-entered aliens to depart voluntarily, in order that they may be eligible to return later; in short, are allowed ample latitude—or exercise it, anyway.

WORSE YET—an investigation of Secretary Doak's entire deportation administration threatens, now that criticism of it has been started in connection with the Larsh case.

It is a subject that Congressman Samuel Dickstein of New York (he will be chairman of the house of representatives' immigration committee if the Democrats prove strong enough to organize the lower congressional branch next winter) has been trying for months to open up.

What Doak calls a "deportation policy" Dickstein calls a "deportation mania."

The New Yorker also denounces it as "lawless" and "anarchistic."

Senator William H. King of Utah, senior Democratic member of the upper congressional chamber's immigration committee, employs the milder expression "deportation hysteria."

"It is an hysteria," says the senator, "to which both the labor and state departments have fallen victims.

"In the former it manifests itself in the present deportation drive. In the later it is revealed in the refusal of passport visas to many persons who are perfectly entitled to enter the United States.

"Mrs. Larsh's banishment, of course, was downright cruel and inhuman.

"A reduction, to be sure, has been accomplished in the volume of immigration into the country. An attempt was made to accomplish it by legislation at the last session of congress, but the legislative method failed; congress did not enact it. Now it is being accomplished nevertheless, by administrative means."

And is labor profiting from it, through reduced immigration?

"No one profits," replied the senator, "from government by hysteria."

Just Silly Ambitions
Winking Wickedly, Wiggling My Ears
But What About You?

At times, while growing up, I've had many silly ambitions. I blush for some of them, but most of them, I fear, are still lurking in the back of my mind, and I'll never outgrow them. At the moment, however, I confess that more than once I've wished I could:

Ride a bicycle backward.

Play a slick game of chess.... and the piano....and the accordion ....and a jew's harp....and click the castanets like La Argentina.

Box like Joe Gans and hit like Jim Jeffries.

Make as good a speech as Marc Antony made in "Julius Caesar" over the body of Caesar....hold a crowd spellbound, you know.

Read a medical thermometer or a railroad time table.

Wink wickedly.....and wiggle my ears.

Do tap dancing.....and card tricks.....and amateur hypnotizing.....and walk a tight-rope.... and be a dashing young man on the flying trapeze.

Ride a horse like Tom Mix or Bill Hart.....quell a fierce dog with one glance of the eye....pet a lion.

Ignore a ringing telephone when I don't want to answer it.....or open a telegram without wondering if someone's dead.

Be completely at ease in banks .....or with the young men in box offices.

Be a "shark" at billiards..... sing like a bird or fly like one.... do a parachute jump.

Loaf without feeling a pain in the region of the conscience.... have a pain on the right side without thinking of appendicitis .....save a drowning man.

Come right out and admit that I don't like opera.....carve a chicken or turkey without getting hot and perspiring and the tablecloth all dirty.....and not give a rap what people think.

What silly ambitions I've had! What absurd and childish ambitions you, too, have cherished—and kept to yourself! And if anybody ever accuses me of having had any of these ambitions I'll deny it immediately and completely because I'm not so sure that all confession is good for the soul.

Finish Meal With Cheese

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

A large number of recent observations on the physiology of the gall bladder have passed into practical medicine. With the development of the dye method of gall bladder diagnosis, it has become necessary to make the gall bladder empty itself in order to test out its powers of contraction. To do this the patient is given same fat to eat —a glass of cream or a hard boiled egg and the full gall bladder is immediately seen under the X-ray to empty.

For no good reason except experience, people of middle age have instinctively taken some cheese at the end of a meal. Especially at the end of the heaviest meal of the day. This, so far as I know, was not done out of any profound knowledge of physiology, but simply because they knew that they felt better that way.

Deeply instinctive habits are usually found sooner or later to have some reason in fact. And the newer knowledge of the gall bladder seems to furnish the explanation of the eating of cheese by middle-aged people at the end of a heavy meal.

Children, incidentally, do not readily acquire such a habit. They like desserts at the end of a meal. This taste lasts up to about the age of 30, and then for most people the curve of dessert eating gradually drops until it finally disappears. Cheese as the last course, or salad with a cheese dressing or an olive oil (fat) dressing, means the same thing.

The explanation is that gall bladder disease is a very common disease of middle age. It is very uncommon in young people and begins to be observed at about the age of 35. Statistics show that about 40 per cent of people over this age have either gall stones or infected or sluggish gall bladders. Of course a gall bladder, when distended and when somewhat inflamed, gives a certain amount of discomfort. This may not be very acute, but may only amount to a feeling of heaviness or fullness in the region of the stomach. Cheese is the same in action as the cream or hard-boiled egg the X-ray man gives his patient to empty the gall bladder. It drains the gorged gall bladder of these middle-aged folk and makes their meals "set" well. A sweet dessert will not do the same thing. So when you choose cheese as the finale to your meal you are using the very latest principles of modern medical practice.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. W. B., Everett, Mass.: "I understand that tinea trichophyton, or "athlete's foot," if not given proper care, will develop into something serious. Is this true?"

Answer: It may develop into a very chronic and deep-seated infection. When severe secondary infection occurs from scratching, cellulitis of the leg (blood poisoning) may develop.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Tell Girl Friend of Your Love

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Dear Miss Lee: I'd like to tell a boy in your column who signed himself N, H. S., that if he loves that girl to tell her so, and if she's the right kind of a girl she'll stand by him and help him.

"I love a high school boy who is forced to work. He plainly shows that he cares for me, yet he barely speaks. He probably thinks that because his position is only a clerk in a store that I'd expect him to take me to dances and spend money on me. I wouldn't, Miss Lee. I only want to encourage him, to make him feel he has a true friend. In short, I like him for himself and admire his courage because he has stood some mean remarks, and I am proud that he has proved capable of supporting himself.

"He's about 18 and I'm 17. How can I possibly show my attitude, Miss Lee? I want your advice so much. Blue Eyed Seventeen."

You can smile at him in the friendliest way, Seventeen, whenever you meet. You can even invite him to a party at your house sometime, if you give one for your high school friends. You can do all this without giving him the impression that you are running after him, so don't worry about that.

You also can express your feelings concerning him to others so that they too, imitating you, will feel and act friendly toward him.

It isn't our fault, is it, if boys and men still feel they must conceal their real feelings from their girl friends because they can't marry right away?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: As experience is the best teacher, I have an experience to tell Marilene. My cousin met a man about six years ago. He went to night school at a certain very prominent college. He married my cousin while he was going to school. He had three years to finish, and his wife had so much admiration for him that she didn't fret about it. Two years later a little son was born to them. The young man continued to attend school and last June he received his degree. In September he was made manager of his works. Isn't that worth while?

"We all love these three people and admire him greatly for his perseverance. They are very, very happy.

"GREEN EYES."

Thank you, Green Eyes, for your nice letter. As to your own troubles, I do think they're mostly because you are young. A long bob does make a girl look little girly, I think, and sweet, too. You are, probably, a little bit sentimental, but that's all right, if you don't let it go too far.

I should judge from your letter that you are as popular as most girls, much more so than many so don't worry about the matter so as to be unhappy At the same time, learn to be enough interested in others to be sympathetic and understanding, and you will never lack friends.

I imagine as you grow older and maybe go to college and meet different, people you will learn to grow more sociable. But you need not make a lot of friends to be happy and have a good time. A few congenial souls are better than a number of people with whom you have little in common.

K. C. M.: Thank you for your kind wishes for my success. You have had rather a fluctuating friendship with this young man, haven't you? As you wrote two letters, the note that he may not have gotten on time, and the letter asking him why he hadn't replied to your note, it seems to me he should have answered one or the other or both, if he had wished to continue the friendship.

I think it is distinctly up to him now, unless you think that there is a possibility that he did not receive either, when it would be all right for you to write again.

"Break In" Shoes Prior to Vacation

By GLADYS GLAD

In continuing my beauty advice for the vacation days, I wish to impress upon my readers the importance of foot care during this time, especially if the holidays are to include such strenuous activities as hiking, golfing, dancing and tennis playing.

It is the better part of wisdom to be provide with an ample supply of shoes for all occasions. But it is even more important that these shoes fit the feet correctly, and be "broken in" before the vacation time arrives. It's no special pleasure to go hiking in a pair of shoes that are stiff with newness, and that take the skin off your heels before the first mile has been covered. The really smart girl will be prepared for all such exigencies, and will have tucked away in her luggage a soothing preparation for tired and aching feet.

Another item that the careful woman will plan to carry with her is a deodorant, so that she may preserve her daintiness despite the perspiration induced by a vigorous game of tennis or a lengthy trek after a golf ball.

So many vacations mean "roughing it," that hands usually come in for an awful lot of abuse. And there's no need for it, either. Even on a camping trip, the hands may be kept in lovely condition if protective creams and softening lotions are carried and used.

The condition of the water at the place that you plan to spend your vacation is another consideration. Is it hard or soft? Hard water will mean the necessity of some sort of a water softener, such as tincture of Benzoin, or one of the softening meal bags.

The biggest problem for the majority of us this summer will be to keep the ultra-violet rays of the sun from making havoc of the skin of our faces, arms, back and necks. Better look around for the best protective creams right now. It never pays to forget that the things that happen to your skin during the summer usually last well into the winter.

Remember, even our vacation days do not mean a vacation from beauty problems. Solve as many of yours as you can before the boat or train leaves for that chosen spot.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Bleach

Paula: The superfluous hair bleach to which you refer is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia.

Bow-Legs

Lorlee: If you are under the age of 16 years, the exercises listed in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs" may help to correct and shape your legs. After that age an operation is generally necessary to correct bow-legs.

Cocoa Butter

Polly: Cocoa butter is used for fattening purposes. Massage your face nightly with warmed cocoa butter. This will help to fatten the tissues and round out the facial contours.

Rouge

Lorlee: The hues you mention are indeed suitable for a person of your coloring. A good brand of rouge will not harm your skin, providing that you cleanse the skin thoroughly after its use.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

MORE THAN 300 BOY SCOUTS ATTEND CAMPARALL IN XENIA

More than 300 Boy Scouts from Tecumseh Area will attend the first all Council Camparall on the Scout reservation in Shawnee Park Friday afternoon and Saturday.

Two hundred of these Scouts or twenty-five patrols will actually participate, while the remainder will be on hand as alternates and spectators. Training of these boys for the Camparall has involved an adult leadership of more than 200 men from Logan, Campaign, Clark, Greene and Clinton Counties during the past six months. It is estimated that forty men will be with the boys during their stay in the miniature tent city here.

Details of the program are being announced by general chairman, H. S. Goodrich, Springfield. They follow: Friday 4 to 7 p. m. patrols encamp; 8 p. m., campfire, and taps at 10 p. m.; Saturday, 6 a. m. reveille; 7:30, breakfast over, police site, and prepare for inspection; 8, assembly, colors and instructions; 9, inspection and campcraft project; 10 a. m. cookcraft project; 12 noon, mess; 1:30 p. m. projects begin; 5 p. m. projects close; 5:30 p. m. retreat; 8 p. m. council fire; 9:30 p. m. break camp.

Scouts not participating in the Camparall and the public are invited as spectators of the events. Spectators are especially invited to the evening council fire meetings.

Wood for the fires is being furnished by a local committee headed by J. E. Baldner. Each patrol will have four pup tents and these will be placed in an orderly manner along the company streets. Positions for the various groups are already staked off according to Chairman Baldner. Straw will be provided so that more comfortable sleeping accommodations may be enjoyed by the campers.

Headquarters will be established in the Scout cabin and there will be two large tents from Camp Miami for officials who will stay with the Scouts while they are in camp. An Indian teepee, the property of the Rev. A. G. Lebold, district commissioner, will be erected as one of the novelties of the Camparall. It will be occupied by E. L. Blackburn, its former owner, and R. S. McBride, Springfield, district commissioner for Clark County.

NAME DEPUTY SCOUT COMMISSIONER FOR TROOP INSPECTION

Inspection of Greene County Boy Scout troops will be conducted upon a more systematic and an efficient basis in the near future as a result of recent action taken by the commissioner's staff of Tecumseh Council and confirmed by the Xenia District Boy Scout committee.

In a detailed report to members of the committee, the Rev. A. G. Lebold, district commissioner for Greene County, recommended that an additional commissioner be added to the staff. On his recommendation Glenn R. Johnson, Fairfield, former Scoutmaster and Troop committee chairman of Troop 54, was elected to serve as deputy district Scout commisisoner and will cover all troops in the county sponsored by American Legion Posts. These include a troop in formation in Jamestown, Troop 54 of Fairfield-Osborn, and the new troop that is being sponsored by Joseph P. Foody Post of the Legion.

H. E. Eichman is the other deputy district Scout commissioner for the county and will visit troops 41 and 43 of Xenia, and 68 of Cedarville. Carl Pramer, Paul McFarland, and Ward Cresswell, are the Scoutmasters, respectively, of these troops. The remainder of the troops will be given the attention of the commissioner.

Both Eichman and Johnson were given their commission in a short ceremony before the Xenia District Scout committee by District Commisisoner Lebold. He also gave the men a souvenir Scouters badge from Memphis, Tenn., where the national Scout convention was held last week.

C. F. Mellage, deputy commissioner for Tecumseh Council atlarge, gave a report of the convention in which he outlined briefly the benefits that Scouters are receiving from their contacts with the boys. He emphasized leadership training and the dependability ideas that were vividly portrayed at the Memphis assembly.

Scouts and Scouters all over the Tecumseh Council are preparing for the Camparall to be held here on Friday and Saturday.

EIGHTH GRADE WILL HOLD EXERCISES

The Rev. N. C. Trueblood, pastor of the Friends Church, Jamestown, will be speaker at eighth grade commencement exercises at Caesarcreek Consolidated School, Wilmington Pike, Wednesday evening, May 20, at 8 o'clock. Eighth grade graduates are Mary Pauline Marshall, Martha V. Williams, Harry L. Weaver, Thomas Walton Haines and Roy Carle.

Closing day activities will be held at the school Friday, May 22. A cantata, "Uncle Sam's Visit," will be presented at 11 a. m. and a basket dinner will be enjoyed at noon. The afternoon program will consist of athletic events.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL
And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

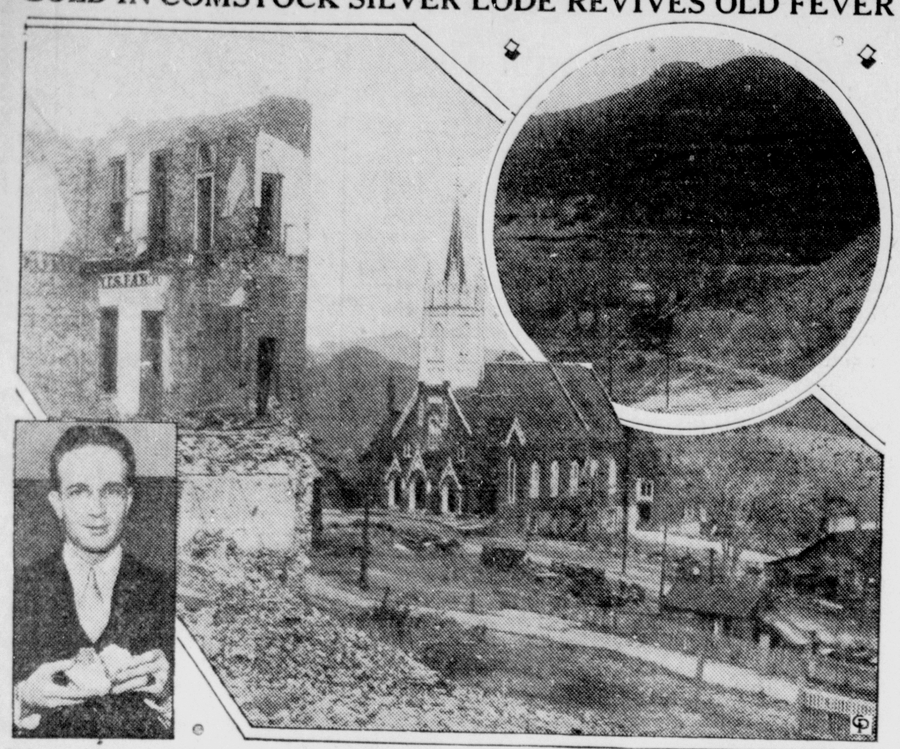
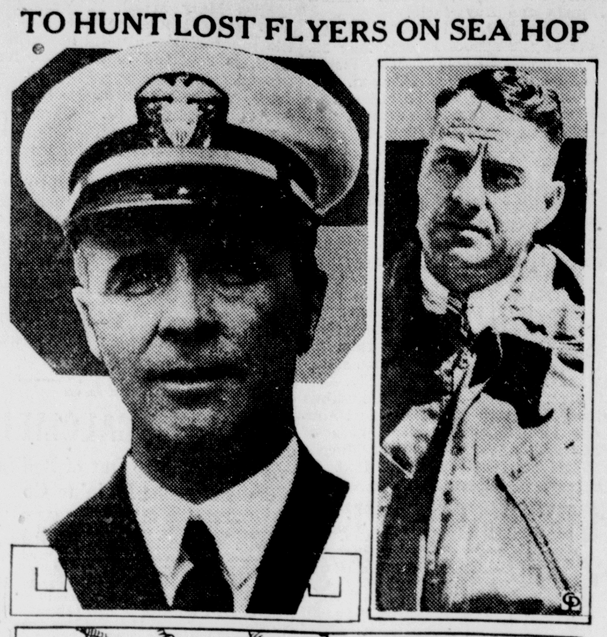
GOLD IN COMSTOCK SILVER LODE REVIVES OLD FEVER



Old sourdoughs and prospectors who rushed to Nevada as fast as stagecoach and pack train could carry them when the famous Comstock Lode, once considered one of the most famous silver deposits in the world, was discovered are impatient to be off again as news comes from Virginia City, Nev., that the famous mother lode is yielding gold. A layer of pure white quartz, carrying chunks of pure gold, has been found just five feet from the bottom of an early mine that had been abandoned as valueless. Estimated value of the quartz is $50,000 per ton. Photos show, top, St. Mary's in the Mountains, a church in Virginia City, built in 1876, when the population was 20,000. Today the population is 600. The partly destroyed building bears the sign of the famous express company of pioneer days—Wells, Fargo & Co. Inset, the hill in which the million-dollar vein was found, and Raymond De Lane, custodian of the samples, examining a piece of quartz.

TO HUNT LOST FLYERS ON SEA HOP



Commander Donald B. MacMillan, veteran Arctic explorer, hopes to find trace of the two Frenchmen, Capt. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, who were lost trying to fly from Paris to New York, in 1927, when he hops off on his projected flight from Boston to London and return, this summer. He also will attempt to demonstrate the feasibility of airplane travel between the United States and Europe over a route across Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and the Faroe Islands. Commander MacMillan, left, will have Charles F. Rocheville of Los Angeles, right, as his pilot. Map indicates their prospective route.

Police Officials Held for Murder

As an aftermath of the gun battle near Evarts, Ky., in which two deputies, a commissary clerk and a miner were slain when the automobiles in which they were riding were ambushed and fired upon, three police officials of Evarts are under arrest charged with first degree murder. Photo above shows the accused men being escorted to Harlan County jail by State Troopers armed with machine guns. They are, left to right: Police Chief Asa Cusick, City Clerk Joe Cawood and Al Benson, assistant Chief of Police. All are of Evarts.

Painting or Photograph? Asks London

The extraordinary accuracy of detail in the above painting by Reginald Eves, noted British artist, may explain why three of the artist's canvasses were withdrawn from the Royal Academy exhibit. It is charged that the paintings are merely enlarged photographs painted over. Inset is Eves, who wa discovered by John Singer Sargent when he wa only an obscure painter. His election to the Roya Academy has been vetoed by the president of tha august body, Sir William Llewellyn.

The junior American League baseball team organized by Foody Post this season benefited by a decision of the Hamilton, O., Legion post not to sponsor a junior nine this year.

Paul Fuller, commander of the local post, explains that the Cities Service Oil Co. is equipping 100 junior Legion baseball teams in the United States with uniforms this summer and that ten Ohio teams were eligible to be so outfitted.

All of the ten Ohio teams to be equipped by the company had been selected but when the Hamilton post gave up the idea of putting a junior nine in the field, the offer of uniforms was made to the Xenia juniors.

Commander Fuller said, and we believe him, that he needed no coaxing before he accepted.. And so the fifteen players who are to receive uniforms will report at post hall at 7 o'clock Thursday night to be measured for their new regalia.

The oil company's offer also includes a complete catcher's outfit, a first baseman's glove and a dozen balls.

Outfitted from head to feet, the Xenia juniors should present a snappy appearance when they play their first game one of these days.

Dick Wells, southpaw pitcher, who is a brother of Herman Wells, local softball hurler, just missed twirling a perfect game for the Dayton H. and B. Otto Shoppe amateur nine a couple of weeks ago. For eight innings Dick turned back the opposition with nary a hit and nary a run. Then in the ninth his dream of a no-hit, no-run game faded and there came a sad awakening. Two singles in succession came in the fatal ninth Stoo bad.

A story from Lodon, O., says that "for the first time in harness race history in the midwest, the rubber-band barrier system of race starting will be used there this summer, with the trip device originated and patented by Steve Phillips, well known Xenia race starter."

Steve recently installed one of his barriers at the London track and it is being used by William (Doc) McMillan, noted owner, trainer and driver.

The Phillips barrier, just to jog your memory again, is a simple device. It consists of a rubber band, stretched across the track and attached to a trigger arrangement. The horses are lined up in front of the barrier, which is tripped by the starter, allowing the band to snap across the track, thus giving all horses an even start in the race.

VALUE OF OHIO MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS SHOWN BY CENSUS

COLUMBUS, O., May 14.—The value of products manufactured in Ohio in 1929, the last year in which a manufacturing census was taken, was estimated at almost six billion dollars according to bureau of census figures issued today at Washington.

The total, the figures revealed, was 14.7 per cent greater than the total worth of goods manufactured in 1927, the last preceding census year.

Figures revealed the actual total for 1929 to be $5,999,123,993.

In line with the increase in value of goods produced, the number of wage earners also was boosted although only 10.2 per cent.

Wage earners, according to the census estimate, numbered 737,469, and their pay was $1,103,938,912. This did not include salaries.

Other totals made the following revelations:

Number of establishments, 11,815; number of salaries, officers and employes, 111,854; salaries paid, $301,130,164; cost of materials, $2,901,444,004; cost of fuel and purchased electrical energy, $225,723,721; horse power of electric energy 2,233,458.

The summary of Ohio counties showed Ohio manufacturing for 1929 to have been distributed as follows:

PLANNING TITLE DEFENSE—Jack and Estelle Dempsey go into a huddle early in 1926 to discuss his plans for defense of the heavyweight title against Gene Tunney, the ambitious ex-marine.

Ball Yard Banter

They knocked old Eppa Jeptha Rixey out of the box the other day in his first 1931 start, but that may not mean anything. Eppa has a way of warming up in the middle of the season and holding his own despite the fact that he is one of the oldest flingers in years and in service still actively employed.

Rixey is topped in age by only four flingers — Clarence Mitchell, Jack Quinn, Adolfo Luque in the National and Red Faber in the American League.

Herb Pennock is the only hurler who tops Rixey in continuous service under the main tent. Both men were in Uncle Sam's uniform during 1918 but this year can be thrown out because of the great number of ball players who were in the service at that time.

Wally Schang, a catcher, is also older in years than Rixey.

However, Rixey leads all major league hurlers in games won and games pitched. Eppa has tossed 630 contests to Pennock's 518, which is 112 more games. Eppa has also won 251 games while Pennock's record shows but 212 victories.

Burleigh Grimes is nearest Rixey in number of games won, the Cardinal veteran having copped 243 wins.

Quinn, the oldest player of all, broke into the majors three seasons before Eppa, but Jack didn't stay up there continuously. His big league career has been broken by five years spent in minor company.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 14—Industrial stocks turned upward in the early afternoon after a further dip in the rails had unsettled the market and caused the establishment of a new low record for the railroad averages. Outside of a new drop in United States Steel the Bears were unable to make much headway in their "campaign" and with the recollection of last Friday's sizzling rally fresh in their minds, the professionals were inclined to be cautious about extending their short lines. It was the prevailing view that the market was already sold to a stand-still, and in line for a rally of considerable proportions.

WATER GARDENS

Written for Central Press
By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN
Bureau of Plant Industry
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Water gardens are becoming more popular, even in amateur one-man gardens. Until recently this interesting feature of landscaping was commonly thought to have a place only in the more elaborate gardens. But, as horticulturists of the bureau of plant industry point out, many of our most beautiful water lillies are as easy to grow as the better-known and widely-planted garden favorites; and there is no reason why the small gardener should deny himself this means of adding a picturesque spot to his garden.

Dr. Karl F. Kellerman

The water garden should fit into the general landscape scheme. It must be so situated that its development will not intrude on the development of the other features of the garden. A touch of intimacy is among its charms, which can be emphasized if an impression of seclusion is given by appropriate plantings of moisture-loving plants, nearby in the garden.

Water lilies demand plenty of sunshine. They like warm water, too. This makes it inadvisable, sometimes, to have running water. Containers may vary from halves of water-tight barrels to cement pools. One to two feet of water is best. Set the roots in soil in the bottom of the pool or in tubs of soil lowered into the water after the roots are planted.

Three parts of good garden loam and one part of completely decomposed cow manure thoroughly mixed make a soil recommended for water lilies. Submerge the tops of the plants with their crowns from six to eight inches below the surface of the water.

Plants should not be put into a newly constructed cement pool until the water has been changed several times.

PLAY TOURNEY GAME

Spring Valley High School, representing Greene County for the second straight year in the district class B high school baseball tournament, will play its first tournament game at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, meeting the winner of the Urbana-Gratis contest on the University of Dayton diamond. The Valley nine, which is unbeaten in county baseball circles this spring, has won seven out of eight games. Coach Lane is hopeful his boys will progress far in the district meet.

RIALTO'S LATEST

Looking very much the young miss, Reri, the 17-year-old South Sea beauty, is shown above in San Francisco, en route to New York, ready to be "glorified" by Florenz Ziegfeld, who is giving her a part in his next edition of the Follies. Her home is on the South Sea island of Bora Bora.

WILL PLAY SUNDAY

Rained out of a scheduled game with the White Sox, a strong Dayton colored team, last Sunday, the Xenia Merchants have booked this same team for Sunday afternoon at Washington Park, according to Manager Jess Chambliss. Annually represented by a strong diamond aggregation, the White Sox nine this year is said to be no exception to the rule. The Merchants are undefeated in two starts this season and will strive to maintain their unbeaten status against the Dayton team.

Noted Diva Will Star Again on Met Stage

Despite Her Age, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink Looks Forward to Achieving Her Greatest Success When She Again Bows to an Audience—More Than Half a Century After Her Debut.

Lovers of opera hail with delight the announcement that Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, 70-year-old world famous contralto, will be heard again on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House. The internationally known singer, whose rich voice has enthralled audiences of many nations for more than half a century, looks forward to her greatest triumph next season, when after three years' retirement from the stage, she will once more be heard behind the footlights.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Those who remember that "farewell" concert tour of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink in 1927 may recall the flowers and tears with which her audiences bade her goodbye. To those and others it came as good news that the beloved singer, the greatest contralto of all time, although about to celebrate her 70th birthday, will be heard next season in public, as she will again appear on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

To Mme. Schumann-Heink, singing is still the breath of life. Born at Lieben, Bohemia, more than half a century has passed since she made her debut as a contralto in Dresden, in 1878. Fourteen years later she was hailed by royalty when she made her first public appearance in London, in 1892.

"Schumann-Heink" became a name associated with music in Europe and in America. In 1898, responding to the call of admirers in the United States, she made her debut in Chicago, and the name which heretofore was mentioned with admiration in Europe became a sacred name in the hearts of idol worshipers of the entire world. A poor Austrian woman, bending over her washtub and carolling so beautifully that passersby stood still to listen, had arisen and for more than fifty-three years has retained the pinnacle of a singer's career and remained there long after she had become a grandmother.

The inexhaustible energy of this famous woman, who sang for thousands of American soldiers during the troubled days of the World War, thought some contribution was due to American girls. She formulated plans to teach the young women of America how to sing. From all parts of the country women of all ages came to study under her, all hoping that they would follow in a lesser degree their famous mentor and become operatic stars under her guidance.

Mme. Schumann-Heink scoffs at the encroaching years; they do not exist for her. Fatigue? She doesn't know it. Need of rest and retirement may be for others, not for her. Why should she rest when she can bring happiness to countless millions by her voice? Only a few days ago she crossed the continent to Los Angeles to sing at a benefit for the unemployed.

It may even prove surprising to learn that Mme. Schumann-Heink still has dreams of greater glory and one of these is built around her wish to sing the role of Magdalene in "Der Meistersinger." A firm believer that there are always new heights for the artists of the world to scale, this "Grand Old Lady" of the opera, this deity among American songbirds, will continue rejoicing the hearts of her fellow countrymen.

At the Metropolitan Opera House next season this greatest of all contraltos will prove her "youth" in the difficult operas of Wagner's "Ring" triology — "Das Rheingold," "Siegfried" and "Die Walkuere."

Entering a plea of guilty to intoxication, Lester Barlow, 43, white, home-at-large, was fined $25 and costs by Municipal Judge E. Dawson Smith Wednesday and committed to jail in lieu of payment.

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Resinol clears them away

"My complexion was very poor because of pimples and blackheads which covered my face and neck. I had been advised to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, but had tried so many other things without success I was disgusted with everything. However, a friend urged me to try a sample anyway. In three days' time the improvement was so great I could hardly believe it. I will always have a word of praise for Resinol." (Signed)—

Pauline Bunch,

JUDGEMENT SOUGHT; TWO ASK DIVORCES; OTHER COURT NEWS

Suit seeking to collect a judgment for $255.24 recovered against the defendants in the Clinton County courts last March 9, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Allen E. Jay against Clinton W. Jackson and Blanche Jackson.

The plaintiff, claiming the judgment remains unpaid, asks that Charles Madden, as executor of the estate of Andy Jackson, be enjoined from payment of certain money to the Jacksons, named beneficiaries under the will.

The plaintiff requests that the executor, named co-defendant, be required to apply Clinton Jackson's annuity of $250 a year on the judgment and seeks to enjoin payment of $1,300, due Blanche Jackson from the estate as compensation for nursing services. Clevenger and Cartwright are attorneys for the plaintiff.

WIVES SEEK DIVORCES

Charging gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty, Mattie Riley has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Limon B. Riley, to whom she was married March 26, 1903. They have five children, Mamie, Henry Lee and Hazel, all of full age, Pauline, 20 and Nola Mae, 18. Declaring her husband is an habitual drunkard and that he abandoned her last April 27 the plaintiff asks for alimony, attorney fees and custody of the minor children.

Vera T. LeVeck has filed suit for divorce from Bruce LeVeck on grounds of gross neglect and cruelty. The couple was married August 27, 1927. No children were born of the union. Revealing she has separated from her husband, the plaintiff asks for alimony, seeks a temporary restraining order enjoining the defendant from disposing of or mortgaging his property and desires to be awarded a part of the household goods and furniture.

NOTE SUIT FILED

Suit for $700 has been filed in Common Pleas Court by John T. Harbine, Jr. against Fred Woodson, R. E. Bryson and Ella Bryson, the plaintiff claiming the amount is due on a note.

ASK PARTITION

Partition of property is asked in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Florence B. Linkhart against Cyril Linkhart. The plaintiff and defendant each own an equal interest in lot number one of the Howard addition to the city of Xenia, according to the petition. Attorney F. L. Johnson represents the plaintiff.

WINS JUDGMENTS

John T. Harbine, Jr. has recovered the following note judgments in Common Pleas Court: Against Frank M. Liggins and H. R. Hawkins, $110; against Hayse Reed and Daisy May Reed, $198.80.

DEMOCRATS TO MAKE CAMPAIGN ISSUE IS STATEMENT OF FESS

Home for a two weeks' vacation, Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was authority for the statement Wednesday that the chief issue in the next presidential campaign will be whatever the Democrats make it.

Declaring he spoke as an individual and not as chairman of the national committee, Senator Fess asserted the Republican party will "stand squarely on the record in office of President Hoover." He added that the President "is doing a magnificent piece of work in attempting to solve the numerous vexing questions confronting the country today."

"In his effort to lead the country out of the economic depression President Hoover is proceeding cautiously and carefully," Senator Fess said. "His efforts will undoubtedly be rewarded with success."

The senator reiterated a previous belief "there is no doubt" about the renomination of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis, "if the latter chooses to run." He intimated, however, that Curtis, former senator from Kansas, may again seek a seat in the senate.

"In this event," he said, "the party has two likely candidates in Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., now governor of Porto Rico, and Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England."

That the depression will have ended before the presidential election was also the senator's opinion.

HIGHWAY DIRECTOR SAYS CONTRACT FOR PIKE PAVING SIGNED

award and referred the committee to the highway director.

Director Merrell was said to have been surprised by the disclosure Greene Countians had favored concrete construction rather than macadam, declaring that local sentiment had apparently been misrepresented to him.

The highway director expressed regret over the dissatisfaction that exists, but said the contract with the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, low bidder for the project, has been signed. The only alternative left, he said, is to resort to injunction proceedings in the courts to halt fulfillment of the contract.

Director Merrell gave the opinion, however, that the proposed type of road construction would prove satisfactory. He said the construction would be of asphalt with a two-foot concrete burm on each side of the highway and that the pike would be levelled by the removal of the "hump" in the center.

Asserting the state highway department has had to practice the most economies, the director revealed that $30,000 had been fixed as the limit to finance new road construction in Greene County, but that it was later found possible to authorize the Dayton-Xenia Pike project at a cost of more than double this amount.

While not willing to make a definite promise, the director also offered hope that two other road improvement projects proposed for this county removed from the state program this year, would be restored.

Director Merrell was optimistic that extension of the concrete construction on the Xenia-Fairfield Pike for two miles into the village of Osborn may materialize and that a new concrete bridge spanning Caesars creek on the Jamestown Pike, would be built, replacing a bridge which collapsed some months ago.

If the Xenia-Fairfield Road extension is authorized, it is considered possible the steep downhill curve leading to the twin cities of Fairfield and Osborn will be eliminated.

The Southwestern Portland Cement Co. has offered the state a new road bed in exchange for the present road bed down the hill. The company, in excavating an adjacent quarry, has virtually levelled a portion of the hill until the decline is gradual instead of abrupt.

There is considerable local agitation, it became known Thursday, for injunction proceedings to halt the proposed macadamizing of the Dayton-Xenia Pike. County Commissioners, however, said they believe a disinterested group of people should take the initiative in the matter, if such action is considered desirable.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. WILLIAM MCKILLIP

Mrs. Nursie Ann McKillip, 73, widow of William McKillip, died at her home near Jamestown Wednesday evening at 5:30 o'clock. She was born in Fayette County, the daughter of George Washington and Catherine Gordon and had spent her entire life near Jamestown.

Mrs. McKillip was a member of the Church of Christ. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. James Conner, New Burington; Mrs. James Bryan and Mrs. Cash Turner, near Jamestown and Hugh McKillip, at home. Two brothers, Frank Gordon, Jamestown and Rhelman Gordon, near Jamestown, also survive besides six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Jamestown Cemetery.

PLANES ARRIVE FOR AIR MANEUVERS AT FAIRFIELD FRIDAY

Linking coast to coast, these airports would be the army's supply and refuelling bases should war come. On their efficiency would depend the prime quality for which the air corps are maintained—mobility.

They provide the power which could enable the army to throw troops, supplies, and efficient fighting machines to any point of the nation within twenty-four hours. Their importance, in the opinion of the nation's military leaders, can not be overestimated.

"It would mean little if the army had fast and efficient fighting planes if those planes were unable to serve their purpose because of inadequate landing and servicing facilities," Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation pointed out in emphasizing the importance of commercial aviation development.

More than eighty airports, outside of New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and more than a dozen other cities, will be called on for servicing and refuelling army planes during the maneuvers. Through these stops and statistical data on hand, the army plans to complete a comprehensive survey of the national commercial airport system during the maneuvers. Records will be filed in war department archives, and, should hostilities ever occur, these ports would all be on military airways.

The airports themselves, in addition to getting a taste of wartime requirements, will be given an opportunity to operate under what aviation enthusiasts confidently expect will be every-day conditions four or five years hence. Army officials believe the airports will profit and that improvements will suggest themselves as a result.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

DREAMS HOUSE ON FIRE; AWAKES IN TIME TO SAVE FURNITURE AS DWELLING IS RAZED

A dream came true early Thursday morning for Carl Zimmer, who makes his home with his brother's family on a farm on the Kemp Road, about ten miles west of Xenia.

Zimmer dreamed that the two-story, frame farm residence was on fire. Awakening suddenly about 2 a. m., he thought he heard a crackling sound like burning timber.

Going downstairs to investigate, Zimmer discovered the roof was ablaze. Arousing his brother, Joseph and wife and their four children, who were asleep, he phoned neighbors for assistance.

Meanwhile the flames had gained headway and although the Zimmer brothers and neighbors were able to remove most of the household furniture, the dwelling burned to the ground.

The loss was placed at $3,000 or $4,000, partly or entirely covered by insurance.

The Zimmer brothers believe the blaze originated from a defective flue. They said a fire had been built in the furnace Wednesday night, the first time in several days.

Volunteer fire-fighters, forming a bucket brigade, saved a wood shed twelve feet away from the residence. The fact the wind was blowing in the opposite direction probably saved a large barn and a garage from destruction, it was said. Water used to keep the flames from spreading was obtained from a well near the residence, pumped by a gasoline engine. The water supply was barely sufficient to keep the wood shed soaked until the residence blaze had died down.

KING PRAJADHIPOK HERE

Visiting Siamese Ruler First Oriental Sovereign Received At White House

Queen Rambai, First Lady of Siam

King Prajadhipok of Siam

King Prajadhipok anointing the Queen.

A Personality Sketch
By Central Press

King Prajadhipok of Siam, as you probably know, feels quite at home in American clothes, and takes his golf seriously.

Was only 13 when he was sent to England to attend classes at Elton.

Six years later he entered the Royal Military academy at Woolwich and learned to be a horseman.

On his return to Siam he entered into military maneuvers with such gusto, despite the terrific heat, that his health suffered.

He's the first Oriental reigning sovereign ever to be received at the White House.

Among the more poetic titles are King of the North and South, Supreme Arbiter of Ebb and Flow of the Tide, Brother of the Moon, Half-Brother of the Sun, Possessor of the Four and Twenty Golden Umbrellas.

Has a collection of canes that is unrivalled in Siam and likes to row and take pictures.

Among the eastern innovations in the palace at Bangkok is a movie room and shower baths.

Ascended to the throne at the death of his brother, who left no male heir.

Eighty some automobiles stand in his garage, all painted the national color, yellow.

Went to Paris on his honeymoon with his queen, Rambai, where she was tutored in English and French.

Weighs ninety-seven pounds, eighteen pounds less than the queen.

For the entire trip, except a few hours in Washington, Prajadhipok is traveling incognito as the Prince of Sukhodaya.

His name is pronounced as if it were spelled Pra-chat-ti-pok, with the accent on the second syllable.

CHICKEN VICES PREVENTABLE

As modern brooding practices continue to involve greater intensity of confinement in the constant effort to improve over past methods and to gain control over many factors and uncertainties, a new problem, chicken vices, which may prove more disastrous than the old problems attending range methods, has been introduced. However, there is consolation in the fact that the chicken vices—feather picking and cannibalism—are preventable.

After several years' tests, studies, and observations by D. C. Kennard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster, it has been found that special management is the msot effective procedure for preventing these vices. Overcrowding, overheating, too bright day light, empty mash feeders, or anything which contributes to the discomfort or discontentment of the chicks encourages chicken vices. To prevent or correct these primary causes, it is necessary to practice effectively the following measures:

Each 100 chicks should have 70 to 80 square feet brooder floor space, even if they have a sun porch or a sun yard. The cockerels must be removed when 5 to 6 weeks of age.

Overheating can usually be prevented by opening the brooder house to permit a free circulation of air. If the brooder house is lined with matched lumber or insulating board, much protection against the heat of the sun is provided.

Too much bright day light in the brooder house can generally be prevented by covering the windows with brown paper or burlap. During hot weather the burlap must be arranged so as to keep out the excess light and yet permit a free circulation of air through the window spaces and ventilators. Directions as to how to accomplish this will be found in the Station's Special Curcular 28.

By following these measures the Ohio Station brooded 1500 January (1931) hatched pullets in ten groups to 12 weeks of age, when they were transferred to summer quarters, without the appearance of feather picking or cannibalism, except in one lot where some feather picking and a few minor cases of canibalism occurred.

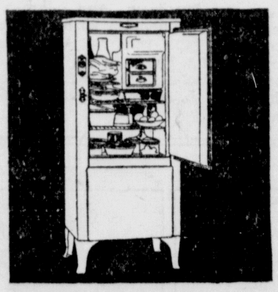
On smooth Steel Rails foods slide in and out of FRIGIDAIRE!

Push a heavy bowl of soup-stock into a Frigidaire—it doesn't stutter its way to the back of the shelf—slopping over as it goes. And when you want it again it doesn't have to be coaxed to come out—it seems absolutely eager to obey your guiding hand . . .

This is because Frigidaire Food Shelves are made of smooth steel rails all running one way—from front to back.

Now, in themselves, easy-riding rails on food shelves are small things. But they are one of the many things that go to make Frigidaire Convenience, which (millions of women will tell you) is a Very Big Thing, indeed!



Easy-riding, one-way rails on all food shelves are one of the very real advantages of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration. There are many others. We invite you to come in and learn all about them.

CHAPTER 39

SEVERAL days passed.

Mary again worked late with Foster, on the evening after she had driven out to the Colonial Inn with Frazier for dinner; but Foster did not invite her to dinner with him. He murmured something about an engagement and let Mary go home alone.

He had said to her on the day when he returned from Blair's office, "I saw your sister this morning, Mary. I didn't know she was working in New York. You always talked as if she stayed at home."

"Oh, yes, Bonnie just went to work for Jamesop-Blair a few week ago. It is her first place to work in New York."

"Bonnie—cute name," he mused. "She is a beautiful child, Mary, and doesn't look strong enough to be commuting from away over in Jersey. You shouldn't allow her to do it, knowing what a strain it is. You had to give it up, finally, you know."

"Mother and I tried to dissuade her, but she would try it." She thought, "I made the trip for four years, and I didn't have to come to New York to live because I couldn't stand the commuting though I did get most awfully tired of it. But if he can't see that, let him think whatever he pleases."

"Plucky little kid, all right," was Foster's comment, still thinking of Bonnie's guileless smile and extravagant compliments.

That week, Mrs. Vaughn was taken ill, and had to send for Mary. The trip home seemed interminable to Mary, now unaccustomed to the long ordeal and anxious to reach her mother. Mom must be seriously ill, to have summoned her in the middle of the day, she concluded. The doctor was calling when Mary arrived. She flew up the stairs and stood fearfully at the door of Mom's room for a moment before she pushed it open and entered. Her mother's face on the white pillow seemed to Mary as gray as the tumbled hair about it.

With a little cry of dismay, she had flung herself on her knees beside the bed, her strong, eager arms almost lifting her mother off the bed.

"Mom, darling—what is it? Why didn't you call me sooner?" Tears choked her words. "Doctor Beaman, what is wrong, please?"

The doctor was bruskly cheerful. "Oh, nothing so serious—now. A cold, and grippe. But I suspect that isn't all. She's tired, and lonely, Mary. Too bad you girls can't be at home more. I think if you can, you had better stay here for a few days and get her cheered up. Pneumonia could set in if we're not careful. You're the best nurse I know for her—and the best medicine. I'll leave a prescription or two to be filled. Think you could manage to be home for a few days?"

"Why, of course, if Mom needs me, Dr. Beaman. You know I wouldn't work in New York if we didn't need the money. It isn't my choice, but I can earn more there."

"I know," he nodded kindly. He had known the family ever since the twins arrived, when he had officiated. "Your mother tells me that Bonnie works in the city, too. I didn't suppose she could make more money there than she could right here in Paterson, with little experience."

"No," Mary defended her, "but positions are so difficult to find now, that she decided a little was better than nothing.'

"Of course," agreed the doctor. "Well, you girls get busy and cheer Mom up a bit, now," he smiled at the woman whose eyes already were alight with the joy of seeing Mary. He left instructions for the patient and departed.

"Pshaw!" Mom declared, when he had gone. "He don't know so much as he thinks he does. I'm not sick, only a cold that I couldn't seem to shake off. Don't you go staying home now and maybe losing your job just for me, Mary."

"Don't you worry about that, dear. I think I need a vacation, myself, for that matter. It won't hurt Foster to do without me for a few days, so we shall both have a rest and a good visit while you get all well again." She was already busy with putting the room to rights, smoothing the bed clothes and bringing Mom a drink of water.

She went downstairs and telephoned to Foster, who was kind and reassuring. He would do the best he could without her, and she was to remain at home until her mother was quite recovered.

With a sigh of relief, Mary turned from the telephone. It was a sigh of weariness, too. Weariness of body, mind and soul. She felt more than physical fatigue, for it was the utter exhaustion of grief and tangled thoughts. It was good to be home and remote from the struggle. A few quiet days with Mom would restore her mental balance and physical strength.

She looked about her. The house showed evidences of Mom's very unusual neglect. A boy's sweater hung limply over one chair, a cap lay in a corner, soiled dishes were stacked in the sink and little gray dust balls rolled gleefully around the bare floors that bordered the rugs.

Mary first went to the drug store and had the prescription filled. She brought home oranges and lemons, gave Mom a glass of cool orange juice and made a pitcher of lemonade for her to keep beside her, so she would have plenty of water to drink. Then she changed from her office jersey to a house dress, and delved into the task before her.

By the time the twins burst into the house and almost strangled her with their violent greetings, she had the house spic and span and a steaming dinner ready for them.

"Gee, Mary, it's good to have you home," Ted declared. "Aw, say, why did you go to live in New York? Ain't it bad enough to work there every day, without staying there nights, too?"

"Yes, Ted, I don't know why I did leave. But I won't again. I'm staying home for a few days until Mom gets well; then when I do go back to work, I shall come home every night like I used to."

The two almost choked her again, in their delight. Tim said soberly, "Mom ain't like herself when you are gone, Mary. Gee, this house has been like a—well, like a tomb, these few days. Mom felt so bad and—and—" the tears conquered, and Mary comforted him while he bravely sniffed them away.

Bonnie did not come home for dinner that night, so Mary had a long comfortable evening with her mother.

"You are not going to work so hard, when you are well again," she told her, sitting beside the bed and stroking Mom's hand affectionately. "No more sewing. It is too hard on your nerves, trying to please everyone, and working over tedious seams and materials. I'll make up the difference, some way. And I'm coming back home to stay.

"Now you will do nothing of the kind," Mom protested. "You make a baby of me because I have a little cold. I'll be all right in a day or two and you just go along your own way. Don't I know it's a lot better for you not to make that trip back and forth?"

"It is, in some ways. But I get homesick, too, and I need you more than I can tell you, or more than I ever realized. I am coming back to stay with you—always."

Her mother smiled, but there was a glow around her heart, put there by those words, "I need you.' There are no sweeter words to a mother whose children are grown and have become self-sufficient. "I hope not," she said gently. "You will have to forget what's past, Mary, and make your life over. I've had to do that. We all have to, some time. You will learn to make the changes easier as you get older. None of life is easy if we love and live and work like it is meant we should. Even the ones who try to get out of the trouble and work, have to face problems some time. But you're not that way, Mary. You take life as it comes and struggle with it. You will win out."

Mary sighed and said resentfully. "It never seems to be that way, Mom. I have so often thought that those who sit back idly and refuse to learn to do everything, seem to live so easily and always get done for them what they can't do. While the people who do everything with all the ardent strength they possess and learn to do anything that is expected of them, have to do not only for themselves but for the people who are willing to let others do for them. They are the ones who have so much expected of them, and the helpless ones get all the sympathy." She thought of Bonnie, of her boastful helpfulness, of Foster's sympathy and concern for her, of his dependence upon herself, who was only made of flesh and blood the same as Bonnie was.

Mom shook her head thoughtfully. "That is what I once thought, too. But I've learned it isn't right, and that you get out of life just what you put into it. I have found that anger and heartbreak and pain that is kept hidden, even though it almost bursts you with the hurt, will bring you more sympathy and admiration than tears and reproaches and resentment will. Tears will more often awake the anger of others than they will bring you pity."

The Theater

All the good will of Hollywood goes with Lois Wilson who is to continue on her comeback in a story by Luigi Pirandello called, critically enough, "As Before, Better Than Before."

Needless to say, it won't reach the screen under this title. Following her hit as the mother of five in "Seed," it is natural that her new story will have a mother-love angle. It centers around a couple who separate and their daughter, who learns to hate her mother's memory.

John M. Stahl, who did a fine job on "Seed," will direct the film for Universal after he completes "Strictly Dishonorable."

A veteran of the films is Gabriel Canzone, an organ grinder who, with his monkey, Josephine, has been appearing in pictures for fifteen years. The pair has a practical monopoly on organ grinder roles on the screen.

No New York street scene is

completed without Canzone. At the moment he is appearing in "Women Love Once," a Paramount picture. When the assignment is completed, if another is not forthcoming, he will wander around the streets of Los Angeles and Hollywood, earning money in the conventional way of hurdy-gurdy men. But engagements are never far between. Directors even have shifted their schedules to get the services of Gabriel and Josephine.

Since the gangster must make his exit, the producers, ever opportunists, are going to turn the tide to their advantage. First National, which has contributed some of the best racketeer films, has commissioned Waldemar Young and the redoubtable Wilson Mizner to write a story showing how gangsters can be wiped out. Their labors will result in Edward G. Robinson's next picture, "The World Changes," which will start June 1. Another film on the law-and-order side is Lucien Hubbard's "The Star Witness" which will feature Chic Sale.

Having abandoned the plan of reuniting Greta Garbo and Jack Gilbert in "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lenox," Metro is all ready with another story for Jack. It is "Candlelight," a play from the French of Alfred Savoir. New York saw an English translation two seasons ago and a company headed by Reginald Owen and Mme. Leontovitch did the play later on the west coast before that actress' Broadway hit in "Grand Hotel." "Candlelight" is whimsical and sophisticated, with only a thread of plot, having to do with a four-way masquerade of a master and his valet and a baroness and her maid. Gilbert has just finished "Cheri-Bibi" and the new picture will be his first sophisticated role since that ill-starred picture, "His Glorious Night." Clarl Gable, who is soaring to stardom, will be the Garbo's leading man in the Susan Lenox thing. He went west to do "The Last Mile" on the stage and then played the gambler in Norma Shearer's "A Free Soul." He has also been assigned to play Wallace Beery's pal in "Sea Eagles."

A NEW ICE CREAM QUALITY

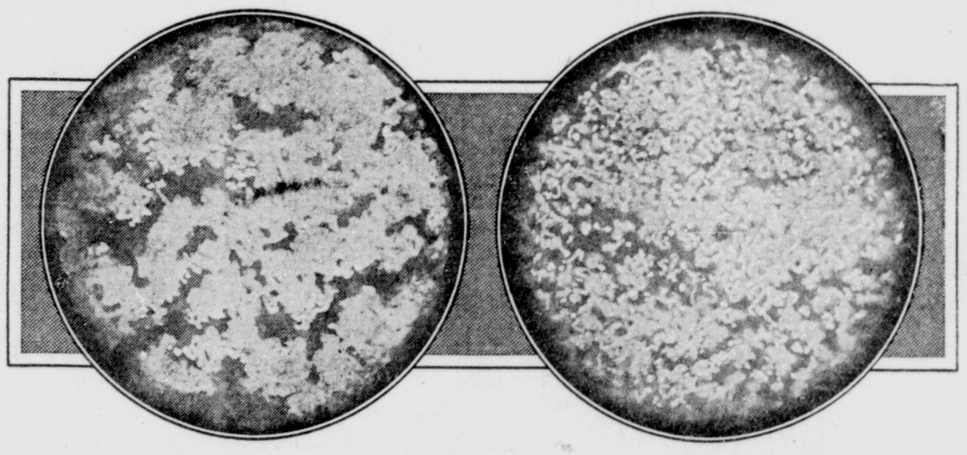
Here it is! A wonderful new method produces a marvelous new ice cream. Now, for the first time the full flavor of sweet cream is released for your enjoyment.

The reason for this remarkable result is easy to understand. Ice cream is composed of crystals. Each crystal contains a portion of the cream and flavor. In ordinary ice cream these crystals are large—much of the delicious flavor is concealed.

In our new "Fast-Frozen" ice cream the crystals are many times smaller. They instantly release all the full flavor of sweet cream for your enjoyment.

Our new "Fast-Frozen" ice cream is hardened at polar cold—frozen in minutes instead of hours. You will be literally amazed at the difference. Never have you tasted such full cream richness—such smooth delightful texture—such delicious flavor.

Our "Fast-Frozen" ice cream is sold in convenient packages for home enjoyment—at no increase in price. Go to our dealer in your neighborhood today and buy a package of this new ice cream—give all the family a real taste thrill.



You can SEE the difference

See how large the crystals are in ordinary ice cream—for this reason they hold a large part of the flavor in. Your taste is actually robbed of full flavor enjoyment.

In Fast-Frozen ice cream the crystals are many times smaller. They instantly release ALL the delicious full flavor of sweet cream for your taste enjoyment.

FOUR PERISH IN FIRE IN TENEMENT HOUSE

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 14.—A mother and three small children were burned to death here early today when fire destroyed a tenement house.

Firemen discovered the tragedy when the blaze had been extinguished. The bones of an adult and three children were found in the smoking ashes.

The dead persons were tentatively identified as Mrs. Hattie Millhouse, 30, her two young children and another small girl who was known to have been spending the night with the Millhouse children.

Firemen thought all residents of the tenement had escaped from the building.

COMMISSIONERS PROTEST PAVING

HIGHWAY DIRECTOR SAYS CONTRACT FOR PIKE PAVING SIGNED

Committee Calls On White And Merrell; Hint Injunction

"On behalf of the majority of the people, residents of Greene County, particularly along the Dayton-Xenia Pike, we most emphatically protest a proposed paving of this pike with macadam. The people want concrete."

This telegram was sent Thursday morning by Greene County Commissioners to State Highway Director O. W. Merrell. The director recently disregarded the recommendations of County Commissioners, County Surveyor W. J. Davis and abutting land owners by awarding the contract for repaving three and two-tenths miles of the Dayton-Xenia Pike with macadam in preference to concrete. The cost difference was only $4,000.

The wave of protest which swept Greene County following announcement of the decision resulted Wednesday in a committee of three men visiting Columbus to formally complain.

The committee composed of City Auditor H. A. Higgins, W. T. Naragon, mayor of Osborn, and Harry C. Sohn, Xenia, obtained an audience with Governor George White. The chief executive during a twenty-minute interview, expressed himself as being ignorant of the details of the contract

Value Of Commercial Airports Will Be Given Test

FAIRFIELD, O., May 14.—Encouraged by better flying weather than they had yesterday, pilots of 600 army airplanes, temporarily delayed at airports all over the country, today continued their flights here for the opening tomorrow of the annual army air maneuvers.

All are to be concentrated here by noon tomorrow to begin a study of maps of the Chicago and Detroit area which they are to "defend" next week.

National Guard planes from eighteen states were expected to be the first to arrive today. Ninety-nine such ships were held up yesterday by weather reported unsatisfactory for flying east of Illinois.

At least 100 planes were en route from San Antonio, Tex. Fifty-seven pursuit planes were scheduled to stop first at Fort Sill, Okla., and St. Louis. The remainder, transport and observation ships, headed for Shreveport, La.

Galveston sent forty-eight attack ships and twenty-nine bombers were en route from Dallas. Sixty-five pursuit planes started from Omaha and at least ten observation planes were on the way from Kansas City.

Maneuvers in New York and Washington will follow the defense of middle western cities, according to present plans.

DAYTON, O., May 14.—America's power behind the throne of national defense in the air—her system of commercial airports—will have a chance to prove their mettle during the army air corps maneuvers beginning at Fairfield tomorrow.

Many of the "ships" in the giant formation of 672 planes that will swing northward and eastward to the Atlantic seaboard from Wright Field will use commercial airports during maneuvers in much the same manner such ports would be

POLICE AND TROOPS PATROL STREETS TO BAR DISTURBANCES

Report Casualties; Demonstrators Ruin Rail Equipment

CAIRO, May 14.—Cairo and its environs were paralyzed today by a series of riots and disturbances which followed opening of the polls in the general elections.

Police were forced to fire upon rioters time and again. Four rioters were known to have been injured in one clash, but the intense confusion prevented an adequate check-up of the casualties. At least one fatality was reported.

One of the principal disorders occurred at the Bulak railway yards, where political agitators influenced workers to acts of sabotage.

Many locomotives and other machinery were damaged by the demonstrators, paralyzing traffic. Only a few trains were able to run on schedule.

Heavy detachments of troops and police were rushed to the yards. They found 3,000 railway employes and 4,000 arsenal workers proceeding with systematic destruction of machinery. Emergency calls were sent in for additional troops.

Spasmodic rioting was reported throughout Cairo and its suburbs, with police taking violent measures to disperse groups of determined demonstrators. Scores of shots rang out as police fired above the heads of the crowds.

The government of Premier Sidky Pasha expressed itself confident of dealing with the situation, precipitated by a boycott of the efection by the Wafd and Liberal parties, whose leaders accused the government of forcing voting.

With hundreds of police and troops patrolling the street, the city resembled an armed camp, the dispatches reported. Serious disturbances also were reported in the provinces.

The demonstrations were the result of a boycott called by the Wafd (Nationalist) and Liberal parties, whose leaders accused the government of Premier Sidky Pasha of attempting to force voting.

TRUCE DECLARED BY WARRING FACTIONS AT STATE COLLEGES

Heidelberg To Renew Battle; To Demand More Freedom

By International News Service

A "cease firing" order was being observed today—temporarily at least—by warring factions in uprisings and disturbanres on the campuses of four Ohio colleges and universities.

The threat of renewed hostilities was greatest at Heidelberg college at Tiffin where men students were quietly drawing up resolutions demanding that dancing, card-playing and smoking be allowed on the campus.

Reappointment of Dr. Newell Sawyer, popular English professor, which was the first demand made in a threatened revolt, has become a secondary issue, leaders declared.

Going on record as opposed to such vandalism as resulted in the burning of an athletic field ticket booth on the campus yesterday, Heidelberg men held a mass meeting and decided to submit their resolutions for new social privileges to the student body and then present them to the board of trustees.

Opponents of compulsory military training awaited the outcome of a faculty meeting at Ohio State University this afternoon when petitions requesting that R. O. T. C. classes be made optional will be presented.

Akron University's campus was quiet again following an order from President George F. Sook suspending Ray Bliss following the sifting of charges of ballot stuffing in a recent May Queen election.

Bliss went to the president and "completely exonerated" Miss Ellen Palmer of any connection with the so-called election fraud. Miss Palmer and Miss Agnes McGowan, however, were ordered by the president to take eight extra hours of work, meaning their graduation will be delayed a semester.

Marietta police were still without knowledge of the names of persons who stoned the Delta Upsilon fraternity house at Marietta College after a stormy election in which Miss Sarah Leake of Lowell, O., was elected president of the student body, but admitted they suspected rival candidates.

DIPLOMAT BEATEN

Although Dr. Carlos Levia, counselor and charge d'affaires of the legation of El Salvator, in Washington, is inclined to make light of the affair, government officials are startled at the effrontery of hi-jackers who raided the legation and beat up Dr. Levia. He surprised them as they were trying to carry away diplomatic liquor. The diplomat was taken to a hospital to be treated for head wounds apparently inflicted with the butt of a gun.

PAIR SENTENCED TO LIFE IN KIDNAPING OF BANK OFFICIAL

Jury Ignores Mercy Plea; Third Gets Twenty Years

CINCINNATI, O., May 14—The maximum penalty—life imprisonment in Ohio Penitentiary—had been ordered today for two men convicted by the state of kidnaping a bank cashier and trying to force him to help them open a vault after holding him captive all night.

Harry Zenz of Carthage, and Lloyd Hebenstreit, formerly of Reading, but now serving a term in the penitentiary for another offense, were found guilty of a attempted robbery of the Reading Bank last June within two hours after the case went to the jury.

Refusing to recommend mercy, the jury made life terms mandatory.

Suggesting that a lighter penalty be given Walter Flory, 20-year-old accomplice, because of his youth, the jury's verdict carried with it a term of not less than twenty years.

Zenz, Hebenstreit and Flory were charged with visiting the home of cashier H. A. Greene the night before the attempted robbery and making captives of the cashier and his family.

Early the next morning, after binding Green's wife and daughter, they took the cashier to the bank and tried to compel him to open the vault, according to testimony on which they were convicted.

When they found that the vault could not be opened because of a time lock, they robbed Greene of all of his personal funds and took a revolver which they found in the bank, it was said, escaping when notified that their presence had been discovered by police.

All three were rushed to Mt. Carmel Hospital at Columbus, 30 miles away, for treatment. Two other men, also from Pittsburgh, who were making the trip, escaped injury.

DENIED NEW TRIAL

COLUMBUS, O., May 14.—Executive clemency today was the only hope of John Williams, Middletown negro sentenced to die in the electric chair May 21 for the murder last October of Isaac Byron, Middletown grocer. Ruling that no constitutional question was involved, the Supreme Court yesterday refused to hear his appeal for a new trial.

WOMAN IS MAYOR

WEEHAWKEN, N. J., May 14.—Mrs. Clara E. Grayert, 72, today doffed her apron and broom to become mayor of this city. She was sworn in as executive last night to succeed her husband, who at the time of his death on April 20 had completed twenty-one years as mayor.

"I have no intention of pursuing a program of political reform," Mayor Grayert announced, "but I intend to give special attention to the playground system."

UNIVERSITY HEAD IS DEAD

Baylor President Is Taken By Death

WACO, Tex., May 14.—The career of a man who rose from section hand to the presidency of one of the largest educational institutions in the southwest was closed today when death claimed Dr. S. P. Brooks, head of Baylor University. He died at 1:15 a. m. from cancer. He was 67 years old.

Doctors despaired of his life two weeks ago and told him he had only a few days to live.

With death facing him, Dr. Brooks decided that as a last act he wanted to sign the diplomas for the next graduating class at Baylor. His physicians advised against it, but he insisted and affixed his signature on more than 300 of them before he became too weak to complete the task. The effort he put into the work hastened his death.

GLASS WORKS OWNER COMMITS SUICIDE

BETHLEHEM, Pa., May 14.—J. George Lehman, 55-year-old wealthy owner of the Bethlehem Glass Works, was found shot to death in the library of his palatial home today by a maid. A bullet, police said fired by the dead man, had penetrated his brain entering the right temple.

Relatives and friends of Lehman could give no motive for his suicide. Police were equally mystified.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 14.—Miss Myrtice 'Roddy of Clinton La., continued today to deny reports that her brother, the Rev. Clyde Roddy, pastor of a Presbyterian Church at Arlington, N. J., is engaged to marry Elizabeth Morrow, daughter of Senator Dwight Morrow and sister-in-law of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

When first asked about the engagement reports last night, Miss Roddy went so far as to say she had been invited to the wedding. Later however, she denied knowing anything about the engagement and said her original statement was due to a misunderstanding.

REPORT GENERAL HARBORD MAY SUCCEED FESS AS G. O. P. CHIEF

WASHINGTON, May 14.—The latest political rumor in Washington is that Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord, who retired from the army to direct the Radio Corporation of America, is being considered for the chairmanship of the Republican national committee.

The chairmanship is now held by Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who is willing, even eager, to relinquish the job. Fess left the capital some days ago for Ohio. He said then that he didn't know how much longer he would be chairman, but that the period couldn't be too short to suit him. He indicated that it was all up to President Hoover.

Gen. Harbord's name is only one of a dozen that have cropped up in discussion of the chairmanship in recent weeks. There has been talk of "Dave" Mulvane, national committeeman from Kansas; Ex-senator Henry J. Allen of Kansas; Ray Benjamin of California, who now has a desk in the committee headquarters, and is supposed to be Mr. Hoover's personal representative, and others.

Mr. Hoover is reported to have urged Benjamin to accept the job, but the Californian is said to be reluctant to take it for business reasons He is an attorney who is building up a governmental practice in Waghington, and his work on the committee is a sideline.

Whether Gen. Harbord has been actually offered the chairmanship has not been ascertained. His friends here, however, expect him to retire from the Radio Corporation before long.

The time is rapidly approaching, when a really active chairman of the committee will have to take hold and start the buildup for the '32 campaign. There are major questions of organization and finance to be decided. One of the prime requisites sought in a new chairman is his ability to raise campaign funds.

Gen. Harbord has been active in the Republican affairs of New York City since his retirement from the army. He has, too, many contacts in banking and business circles which might prove of value when it came to financing a campaign. His ability as an organizer is too well known for comment. He was Gen. Pershing's right hand man in organizing the gigantic service of supply in support of the A. E. F. His work for the Radio Corporation has been similarly marked with success.

BELIEVE LOVE PACT CAUSED DEATHS OF COUPLE AT DAYTON

Think Man Killed Girl; Then Self, By Agreement

DAYTON, O., May 14.—In the belief that Nathan Ray, 35-year-old engineer, and Oneida Sorber, 30, wrought their deaths in a suicide pact, authorities today pried into the lives of the pair, seeking a motive for their act.

The bullet-pierced bodies of the couple were found yesterday at a lonely spot along the conservatory dam near Germantown, where they had driven, it was believed, with the intention of ending their lives.

The automobile in which Ray and Miss Sorber drove to the conservatory dam was borrowed from C. H. Thomas of Dayton. The couple did not explain where they were going when they asked the loan of the car. Thomas told authorities.

Investigation revealed, officials said, that Ray shot Miss Sorber, and then discharged the weapon, a shotgun, into his own body by placing it against the stump of a tree and jerking the trigger with a twig.

Ray was divorced. He has a child attending Roosevelt school, it was learned.

BRIAND COLLAPSES AFTER DEFEAT; PAUL DOUMER IS ELECTED

Foreign Minister To Represent France At League Meet

PARIS, May 14.—Despite his defeat in the presidential elections, Aristide Briand will leave for Geneva tonight to represent France at the League of Nations council meeting as its foreign minister, it was announced following a cabinet meeting here today.

Briand will remain throughout the entire session, the announcement said, although he has signified his desire of resigning owing to his defeat at the hands of M. Paul Doumer, president of the senate and now thirteenth chief executive of the French Republic.

Political observers predict he will again submit his resignation when the league session is over.

The sensational defeat of M. Briand at the hands of the national assembly overshadowed by far the victory of M. Doumer, who will now take office as successor to Gaston Doumergue—the "Smiling Gastonnet" who has inhabited the Elysee palace for the last seven years.

To M. Briand himself it came as a severe shock. Returning to his Paris apartment seemingly almost a broken man, he collapsed. His Valet De Chambre told International News Service the veteran statesman had fallen in a faint, caused partly by the exertions attendant upon the elections and partly by the crushing disappointment he suffered.

No anxiety was felt over his condition, and it was not deemed necessary to send for a physician.

Commentators seeking to determine the actual reason for M. Briand's crushing defeat delved deep into the psychology of the French people and the French parliament. Nearly all agreed that it was the vociferous support of the Socialist party which militated chiefly against Briand's election, for in spite of the fact that France is a well established Republic, the people retain many aristocratic traditions left in the wake of the Bourbon regime.

In addition, parliament has had a traditional dislike of placing in the Elysee palace a man of great popular appeal. The position has always been one of self-effacement, for which M. Briand is held hardly qualified.

SPAIN DISCREDITS REGIME OF ALFONSO

MADRID, May 14.—With virtually all of Spain under military rule in an effort to prevent bloodshed and further outrages against the Catholic Church, the Republican government went forward today with sweeping plans to discredit former King Alfonso in the eyes of the Spanish people.

On the heels of new anti-clerical rioting which necessitated the imposition of martial law at Badajos, the government ordered confiscation of all properties of the exiled king and launched an investigation of his acts since his institution of a dictatorship under General Primo De Rivera in September, 1923.

TWO GIRLS DIE AT CROSSING

Sisters Killed When Train Hits Auto

GREENVILLE, O., May 14.—Two girls who attempted "to beat a train to the crossing" in their automobile, according to witnesses, were almost instantly killed near here today when they lost the race.

The victims of the accident were Esther Burns, 22, and her sister, Thelma, 24. They were on their way to work at a garment factory here.

According to the grade crossing watchman, the girls speeded their car as they approached the crossing in an effort to beat a fast Pennsylvania passenger train.

The train picked up the automobile just as the light car leaped on the tracks. The machine was completely demolished by the impact. Its occupants were badly mangled, and killed almost instantly.

PRISONER TAKEN TO CLARK COUNTY FOR TRIAL FOR ROBBERY

Raymond Massie was transferred Wednesday from the Greene County jail to the Clark County jail to await arraignment on a highway robbery charge in connection with the holdup of a Kroger grocery at South Charleston in March.

Massie was not indicted by the last Greene County grand jury for participating in the holdup of the Green Owl Tea Room and filling station near Cedarville on the same day as the Kroger grocery robbery.

The day following their capture, Massie and two companions, John Ellsworth Quincy, and James Cox, St. Paris, were indicted by a Clark County grand jury.

Cox and Ellsworth were recently indicted for the tea room robbery by the Greene County grand jury, and pleaded guilty. Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy is expected to sentence them this week.

After the grand jury failed to indict Massie a charge of operating an auto while intoxicated was filed against him. When he pleaded guilty he was fined and sentenced to jail.

Should Massie escape conviction in Clark County, he will probably be returned to Greene County and his case presented to the next grand jury.

HOW ONE WOMAN LOST 102 LBS. OF FAT

Almost Unbelievable—Nevertheless True

Dear Friends:

You advertise Kruschen Salts for reducing, so I finally tried them and when I started I weighed 219 pounds and when I took them for a year and 3 weeks. I lost exactly 102 pounds.

I am 23 years old and I look at least 5 years younger now than I did when I was fat. I have a picture of myself before and after so if you want to see them let me know.

I am always telling my friends about the wonderful salts. I am always advertising them.

I took 2 bottles every month for a year and 3 week. It amounted to $25 for reducing 102 pounds but is was worth it.

If I can be of any help to you let me know.

Yours truly. Miss Nellie Simpson, 1903 Wayne Street, Swissvale, Pa. Oct. 31, 1930.

The Modern Safe Way—Right Way to Lose Fat

Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast.

You can hasten the reducing action of Kruschen by going lighter on potatoes, pastry and fatty meats.

Unlike other Salts, Kruschen doesn't reduce by rushing food thru your system. Rather it's an ideal blend of 6 separate mineral salts which help every gland, nerve and body organ to function properly.

Women everywhere are overjoyed with this marvelous reducing treatment. Frequently pound by pound of surplus fat leaves and soon you possess that trim, slender figure you've alway craved.

An 85c bottle of Kruschen (lasts 4 weeks) is sold by leading druggists the world over—so start this SAFE method to lose ugly fat TODAY! Adv.

SOHIO TESTS THE TEMPER OF 'HEAT-TEMPERED' GASOLINES

by FLOYD GIBBONS

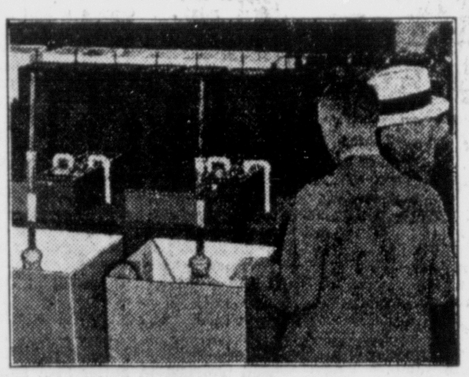
HELLO EVERYBODY!

When you come right down to it, I don't suppose the boys out at that Sohio refinery are exactly what you could call careless in any of their operations. No, sir—it wouldn't pay'em to be.

Heat-tempering steel—from all I hear—isn't the softest and safest job in the world. But heat-tempering gasoline—jamming it up ahead of a pressure that runs a half a ton to the square inch—busting its molecules with heats that would make the noonday Sahara sun look like an iceberg—that sure is all the same as playing with matches around the TNT barrel.

From top to bottom of the Sohio manufacturing organization, "Watch Your Step" is the password of the day and the countersign of the night. With the lads in dungarees—the oil-boiling imps of that twentieth century Inferno—constant caution is a matter of life and death. With the white collar boys, the Sohio research scientists, the chemists, the engineers, the responsible bosses, it's life and death—and something more.



Gibbons gets an eye-full of the check-and-double-checking tests on Sohio heat-tempered gasolines.

Between shudders, while I was being shown how heat-tempered Sohio X-70 is squeezed and massaged and pot-roasted until there isn't a knock left in its system—between shudders, out there at the plant, I estimated that the bosses have to be just about twice as careful as the hands.

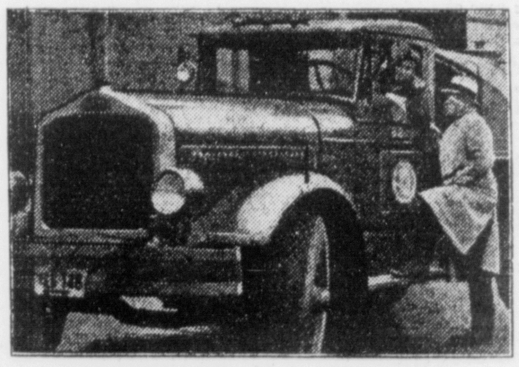
You see, in a dollars-and-cents way they're walking a tight-rope. They've got to bring their crude oil through 1800 miles of pipe-line from the mid-continent fields, for one thing—and the cost of that underground trolley-ride is practically twice as much as the cost of the crude at the well. Even before they installed that mighty and marvelous new apparatus that makes heat-tempered gasoline possible, they were working on an unbelievably narrow margin of profit. And now their determination to put heat-tempered gasoline in your tank for the same price you'd pay for ordinary gasoline—that means that a slip anywhere along the line would be just TOO BAD!

By a wonderful trick of passing heat from oils that have already been fried on both sides, to oils on their way to the chefs—by running the new heat-tempering "circuit" through the same devil's cauldron which must be kept blazing night and day for other routine operations—by adapting and improving packing-house methods of using everything but the squeal—the molecule-busters can make the Ohio public a present of the anti-knock qualities they have blistered into Sohio's two heat-tempered gasolines.

It's a case of care—more care—from the minute the crude starts for its own comparatively mild Turkish bath, until the final act of mayhem has been done to the molecules in those great forged-steel cracking coils.

But if you ask me where the most care is taken in that whole hell-roaring Sohio works—well, boys and girls, I'd say without a second's hesitation that it's in the testing laboratories. There, a flock of gimlet-eyed scientists stand guard against a final danger—and incidentally a danger that the Sohio folks showed themselves more skittish about than any other one on the lot.

By jingo, when I first walked into that busy laboratory,



"Every drop 100% O.K.," the driver tells Gibbons as the Sohio tank-truck starts out with a cargo of heat-tempered gasoline.

it looked to me like some millionaire fish-fancier's private aquarium. There were glass bowls and tanks all over the place—hundreds and hundreds of them.

But something seemed to have happened to the exhibits. There wasn't a fish in sight. My guide—one of those tall-browed Sohio research scientists—grinned all over his face as I stared around.

"No," he said, "not a minnow in the house. It's gasoline in the tanks, not water."

Then he went on to tell me about how heat-tempered Sohio gasolines were checked and double-checked at every possible point of contamination, from the moment they came from the condenser with their molecules lifted to the moment they gushed from the filling-station pump.

Not a tank-car leaves the refinery until a sample has been drawn from it, and has proved itself in the laboratory to be up to the Sohio standard. Never a tank-truck of Sohio's Great Red Fleet is permitted to pass out the gates until the heat-tempered gasoline it carries can be guaranteed up to par.

And that's only the beginning. Scouts are eternally whirling around the state, popping up unexpected at filling-stations, tapping the pumps and sending the samples back to the laboratory for analysis.

"That," said my guide, "is to see that no inferior gas ever gets too close to that Sohio sign."

I took another look at the fishless fish-bowls, and another look at the scientific check-and-double-checkers working among them—and suddenly something struck me as all out of joint.

"Wait a second!" I said. "You told me that this heat-tempering doesn't make any chemical change in gasoline."

"Right," nodded the Sohio sorcerer. "It's a change of molecular structure. That's what we check up in this laboratory. Molecular structures."

I swung a fast one on him: "But everybody's been telling me that molecules are too small to see, even under the most powerful microscope. Then how the dickens can these birds tell one molecule from another?"

My highbrow pal laughed.

"It's a theory," he said. "Still a theory, even for all our excellent proofs. A theory that a man usually has to put in about four years' study to understand. And also it's a theory that has stood every test to date. The results we get in the laboratory are always verified in practice."

It was getting late. Dusk had come. Whistles were blowing. I said:

"Brother, you've got me hypped. Could you spare me about four minutes' worth of that four year course—and tell me anything with a point in the four minutes?"

He could, and he did. Before the echoes of the whistles had died away he was off into one of the dog-gonedest fascinating explanations of scientific sleight-of-hand I ever listened to.

With a diagram sketched on the back of an envelope he actually succeeded in getting it into my skull that Sohio's ace of oil-boilers can do about anything with the atoms in those heat-tempered molecules that a kid can do with building blocks. I mean, in the way of building 'em up, and tearing 'em down, and changing 'em around.

Yes, sir—inside the four minutes he had put me next to the very core of Sohio's heat-tempering secret. On the square, boys and girls, I meant to spill it at this session. But if I went on and wrote what I learned in those spectacular four minutes, the printers would have to be setting type in the margins and all over the art-work.

So what do you say if we save it for next time? Okay. See you next week, all. And until then—save that four minutes!

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Hatred stirreth up strifes: but love covereth all sins. In the lips of him that hath understanding wisdom is found: but a rod is for the back of him that is void of understanding. — Proverbs, x, 12, 13.

FORGOTTEN ELEMENT

One important aspect of the question they debated seems to have received little or no direct attention from the speakers before the American Law Institute, who discussed the question of the use of firearms against offenders or suspects resisting arrest, and in particular against defiers of the prohibition law. A participant, Professor William E. Mikell, of the University of Pennsylvania, thought that the right of an officer to kill or wound should be limited "to capital offenses." Others were more liberal, and Professor John E. Waite, of the University of Michigan, held that the right of the officer of shoot should "be extended to include all offenses."

But none of the speakers, whether extremists or middle-of the-roaders, whether sympathizers with the prohibition law or otherwise, seemed to take into account the painful fact that in many cases the officer seeking to make an arrest isn't in a position to decide whether he is going to use his gun or not, because the fugitive decides the point for him by pulling a weapon and blazing away. Then a return of the fire becomes a matter of self-defense.

Something can be done to restrain over-eager or bloodthirsty officers who are inclined to shoot at the first provocation. We think Newton Baker was picturing a condition he would like to see rather than the one which exists, when he said he never knew of an officer shooting wantonly—but it will be quite hopeless to set down any hard and fast rule of the sort Dr. Mikell advocates until a successful campaign for internal disarmament of the country has been carried through.

As long as some millions of people habitually tote pistols and a whole lot of people shoot fellow human beings with as little compunction as they would shoot any dog or cat, the war between the forces of law and order and the forces of crime is going to be carried on with deadly weapons, rule or no rule.

ARE THEY INCLUDED?

Following the indorsement by Dean Clarence W. Mendell, of Yale, of the undergraduate campaign of the Crusaders in his school, comes a statement by President John Grier Hibben, of Princeton, who likewise favors the activities of the organization among pupils in the college over which he presides. President Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia, long has fought the Eighteenth amendment in both political and scholastic circles. And so we find a rather strategically located triumvirate of school men lining up for relief from the bone dry laws now technically in force in this country. And there is no reason to suppose that they stand alone among college officials in feeling that a change from the prohibition amendment is necessary to the best good of the nation, and in particular is necessary to the best good of the young people under their care.

Does Bishop Thomas Nicholson include these gentlemen among the nefarious "group of millionaires and society people who are determined to have their liquor," and are furnishing "all the noise" made by the wets?

"The Democracy is moving ahead beautifully," says the Atlanta Constitution. "Its only danger is that some blamed fool in the crew will rock the boat." And, unfortunately for the Democracy, that is always a large danger when it embarks on one of its quadrennial voyages to try to make the White House.

Over the wire comes the news that General Smedley Butler has a sore throat. But we are going to let you make your own joke about that.

Other Editorial Thoughts

SPEAKING OF TOLERANCE

Conversation about tolerance is plentiful in these days; but, unfortunately, as in time past, a considerable part of it comes from those who are more concerned about tolerance for their own particular ideas or schemes than they are about tolerance for the ideas and schemes of others. Probably there would be some difficulty in proving that the spirit of genuine tolerance is much more prevalent than it was in the days when the stake, the ax or the wheel, to say nothing of the rack and thumbscrew, were rewards for those who dared to think or act independently in the open, and in defiance of prevailing beliefs and customs.

It is true that we do not torture or burn people for religious, political and economic heresies, at least it is not done in this corner of the world, but that is because we have become more humane, not because we have acquired more tolerance of spirit than our ancestors had.

If genuine tolerance were the order of the day in the United States many of our vexatious political and governmental difficulties would lose most of their vexatiousness. High tariff and low tariff people, world court and anti-world court people, so-called radicals and so-called conservatives, could get together amicably, iron out many misunderstandings and arrive at many sensible working agreements, if it were not for silly prejudices and intolerances, or in some instances if it were not for an intolerant declination to concede fair play to an opposition because it is an opposition.

In the religious world we have the intolerance of the fundamentalist, who would ban the dissemination of modernism, and in particular of evolutionary ideas, by law, and the counter intolerance of the modernist, who revenges himself by jeering at the fundamentalist and crying down his religious beliefs. On the moral side, we have the intolerance of the puritan who undertakes to regulate private lives with the aid of a multiplicity of laws, and the retaliatory intolerance of the loose living who deride individual decency and try to deny other people the right to live in an atmosphere of public decency.

Happily there are exceptions to this order of things. The new relationship that has grown up widely between intelligent capital and intelligent labor is a notable one. Probably never before in the history of this country, or of any other country, was there as much reciprocal tolerance between employers and employes as there is in the United States at this time. This has come, not in any mysterious or esoteric way, not as the result of the adoption of some extraordinary formula for the cure of industrial ills, but as the result of a sensible effort by reasoning men to get together and understand each other's viewpoints, problems and rights. There has been give and take between man and man, and a consequent understanding and sympathy. That is the reason negotiations and settlements become more and more prevalent, and strikes fewer and fewer. If some other elements in the country would study the history of the relations of capital and labor and would profit by the lessons to be learned from the study, this country would gain a great deal in things it very much needs.—Detroit Free Press.

"What on earth did you do that for?" said the Doc.

Approximately one hundred persons a month meet death in New York as a result of automobile accident—most of them pedestrians.

The city is beautifully covered by a network of traffic lights to which men and women on foot pay but scant heed. They labor under the impression that the lights are only for drivers.

In the heart of the theatrical district at night, on very busy corners, it requires the close attention of eight policemen to keep the mobs back of the curb until "the lights are with them."

One of these cops turned his back the other night to devote a moment's time to a recalcitrant taxi driver, and a female pedestrian stepped off the sidewalk directly in front of a purring sedan rolling merrily along to the tune of about 35-an-hour.

The cop walked up to the woman. He stood in front of her and addressed his remarks to the planet Jupiter twinkling dimly through the Broadway murk.

"I dunno what Gawd give 'em brains fer," he said. "But I guess I hadn't oughta kick. If their heads was a restin' place fer brains, I wouldn't have a job—get there on th' sidewalk!"

But he never revealed his system and he's carrying the secret with him, into retirement.

THE LATEST EFFORT TO RELIEVE THE FARMER

DEPORTATION OF MOTHER BORN IN STATES AROUSES WOMEN'S PARTY

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Labor William N. Doak's wholesale deportation-of-aliens program not only hit a snag, but indications are that it will prove to have been a very bad snag, when Detroit immigration officials recently banished American-born Mrs. Lillian Larsh to Canada with her four fatherless small daughters, one of them also American-born.

There have been complaints for some time of almost intolerable brutality in the Doak labor administration's method of ridding the country of foreigners accused of having entered it illegally.

These complaints have not made much impression hitherto, however—partly, perhaps, because aliens seldom have any friends or influence or enough money to defend themselves; certainly in large part because American labor looks, in the main, with an approving eye upon Secretary Doak's activities, and labor casts too many votes to be lightly disagreed with by the average politician.

But the Larsh case is different.

It already has been so fully outlined that just a paragraph doubtless will serve as a reminder of its details—

That the lately-deported woman was born and brought up in Michigan is not disputed, but she lost her citizenship in 1917 by marrying William Larsh, a Canadian. She would retain it under the present law, but not then. Once lost, the change in law did not restore it to her. For awhile the Larshes lived in Detroit; then in Canada; then returned to Detroit—illegally, according to the labor department. Six months ago Larsh died, leaving his family destitute. The widow was notified on April 23 that she must quit the United States. Two days later the immigration service actually shipped her with her brood to Wallaceburg (Ont.) The oldest girl, Lorraine, aged 11, being a native American, could not have been forced upon Canadian charity, but dominion officials, unequal to the harshness of separating her from her mother, accepted her.

There is no especial reason for assuming that there is anything more remarkable in the Larsh case than in an indefinite number of other deportations (quite likely there are hundreds as remarkable, if the public did but know it), but it happens that the Larsh case particularly touches the sensibilities of the National Woman's party, in that Mrs. Larsh was deportable because she is a woman; a man, American-born, did not lose his citizenship even under the old law, by wedding an alien. The old law drew that distinction between men and women, and while it was a distinction which congress has since removed, the labor department held that it was not removed as to folk in Mrs. Larsh's position.

Now the National Woman's party's sole mission in political life is to secure absolute legal and economic equality for men and women.

Hence, hardly had the news of Mrs. Larsh's deportation reached the party's headquarters in Washington than the feminist group's national chairman, Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, called on Secretary Doak for an explanation.

The labor department's version of the affair turned out to be anything but satisfactory to the Woman's party management.

It was furnished by Assistant Secretary Robe Carl White, whose account was that Detroit immigration officialdom had no option; it did what the law prescribes, and there was nothing else it could do.

The truth is, rejoins Mrs. Burnita Matthews, chairman of the lawyers' council of the woman's party, that Mrs. Larsh easily could have been given an opportunity to re-establish her citizenship, had the authorities wished her to have such a chance.

Supplementing Mrs. Matthews' statement, Miss Muna Lee, director of the party's national activities, points out that the labor folk take plenty of time with their deportations whenever they choose; sometimes hold them up for weeks; often permit illegally-entered aliens to depart voluntarily, in order that they may be eligible to return later; in short, are allowed ample latitude—or exercise it, anyway.

WORSE YET—an investigation of Secretary Doak's entire deportation administration threatens, now that criticism of it has been started in connection with the Larsh case.

It is a subject that Congressman Samuel Dickstein of New York (he will be chairman of the house of representatives' immigration committee if the Democrats prove strong enough to organize the lower congressional branch next winter) has been trying for months to open up.

What Doak calls a "deportation policy" Dickstein calls a "deportation mania."

The New Yorker also denounces it as "lawless" and "anarchistic."

Senator William H. King of Utah, senior Democratic member of the upper congressional chamber's immigration committee, employs the milder expression "deportation hysteria."

"It is an hysteria," says the senator, "to' which both the labor and state departments have fallen victims.

"In the former it manifests itself in the present deportation drive. In the later it is revealed in the refusal of passport visas to many persons who are perfectly entitled to enter the United States.

"Mrs. Larsh's banishment, of course, was downright cruel and inhuman.

"A reduction, to be sure, has been accomplished in the volume of immigration into the country. An attempt was made to accomplish it by legislation at the last session of congress, but the legislative method failed; congress did not enact it. Now it is being accomplished nevertheless, by administrative means."

And is labor profiting from it, through reduced immigration?

"No one profits," replied the senator, "from government by hysteria."

Just Silly Ambitions
Winking Wickedly, Wigging My Ears
But What About You?

At times, while growing up, I've had many silly ambitions. I blush for some of them, but most of them, I fear, are still lurking in the back of my mind, and I'll never outgrow them. At the moment, however, I confess that more than once I've wished I could:

Ride a bicycle backward.

Play a slick game of chess.... and the piano....and the accordion ....and a jew's harp....and click the castanets like La Argentina.

Box like Joe Gans and hit like Jim Jeffries.

Make as good a speech as Marc Antony made in "Julius Caesar" over the body of Caesar....hold a crowd spellbound, you know.

Read a medical thermometer or a railroad time table.

Wink wickedly.....and wiggle my ears.

Do tap dancing.....and card tricks.....and amateur hypnotizing....and walk a tight-rope.... and be a dashing young man on the flying trapeze.

Ride a horse like Tom Mix or Bill Hart.....quell a fierce dog with one glance of the eye....pet a lion.

Ignore a ringing telephone when I don't want to answer it.....or open a telegram without wondering if someone's dead.

Be completely at ease in banks .....or with the young men in box offices.

Be a "shark" at billiards..... sing like a bird or fly like one.... do a parachute jump.

Loaf without feeling a pain in the region of the conscience.... have a pain on the right side without thinking of appendicitis .....save a drowning man.

Come right out and admit that I don't like opera.....carve a chicken or turkey without getting hot and perspiring and the tablecloth all dirty.....and not give a rap what people think.

What silly ambitions I've had! What absurd and childish ambitions you, too, have cherished—and kept to yourself! And if anybody ever accuses me of having had any of these ambitions I'll deny it immediately and completely because I'm not so sure that all confession is good for the soul.

Finish Meal With Cheese

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

A large number of recent observations on the physiology of the gall bladder have passed into practical medicine. With the development of the dye method of gall bladder diagnosis, it has become necessary to make the gall bladder empty itself in order to test out its powers of contraction. To do this the patient is given same fat to eat—a glass of cream or a hard boiled egg and the full gall bladder is immediately seen under the X-ray to empty.

For no good reason except experience, people of middle age have instinctively taken some cheese at the end of a meal. Especially at the end of the heaviest meal of the day. This, so far as I know, was not done out of any profound knowledge of physiology, but simply because they knew that they felt better that way.

Deeply instinctive habits are usually found sooner or later to have some reason in fact. And the newer knowledge of the gall bladder seems to furnish the explanation of the eating of cheese by middle-aged people at the end of a heavy meal.

Children, incidentally, do not readily acquire such a habit. They like desserts at the end of a meal. This taste lasts up to about the age of 30, and then for most people the curve of dessert eating gradually drops until it finally disappears. Cheese as the last course, or salad with a cheese dressing or an olive oil (fat) dressing, means the same thing.

The explanation is that gall bladder disease is a very common disease of middle age. It is very uncommon in young people and begins to be observed at about the age of 35. Statistics show that about 40 per cent of people over this age have either gall stones or infected or sluggish gall bladders. Of course a gall bladder, when distended and when somewhat inflamed, gives a certain amount of discomfort. This may not be very acute, but may only amount to a feeling of heaviness or fullness in the region of the stomach. Cheese is the same in action as the cream or hard-boiled egg the X-ray man gives his patient to empty the gall bladder. It drains the gorged gall bladder of these middle-aged folk and makes their meals "set" well. A sweet dessert will not do the same thing. So when you choose cheese as the finale to your meal you are using the very latest principles of modern medical practice.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

A. W. B., Everett, Mass.: "I understand that tinea trichophyton, or "athlete's foot," if not given proper care, will develop into something serious. Is this true?"

Answer: It may develop into a very chronic and deep-seated infection. When severe secondary infection occurs from scratching, cellulitis of the leg (blood poisoning) may develop.

Tell Girl Friend of Your Love

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"Dear Miss Lee: I'd like to tell a boy in your column who signed himself N. H. S., that if he loves that girl to tell her so, and if she's the right kind of a girl she'll stand by him and help him.

"I love a high school boy who is forced to work. He plainly shows that he cares for me, yet he barely speaks. He probably thinks that because his position is only a clerk in a store that I'd expect him to take me to dances and spend money on me. I wouldn't, Miss Lee. I only want to encourage him, to make him feel he has a true friend. In short, I like him for himself and admire his courage because he has stood some mean remarks, and I am proud that he has proved capable of supporting himself.

"He's about 18 and I'm 17. How can I possibly show my attitude, Miss Lee? I want your advice so much. Blue Eyed Seventeen."

You can smile at him in the friendliest way, Seventeen, whenever you meet. You can even invite him to a party at your house sometime, if you give one for your high school friends. You can do all this without giving him the impression that you are running after him, so don't worry about that.

You also can express your feelings concerning him to others so that they too, imitating you, will feel and act friendly toward him.

It isn't our fault, is it, if boys and men still feel they must conceal their real feelings from their girl friends because they can't marry right away?

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: As experience is the best teacher, I have an experience to tell Marilene. My cousin met a man about six years ago. He went to night school at a certain very prominent college. He married my cousin while he was going to school. He had three years to finish, and his wife had so much admiration for him that she didn't fret about it. Two years later a little son was born to them. The young man continued to attend school and last June he received his degree. In September he was made manager of his works. Isn't that worth while?

"We all love these three people and admire him greatly for his perseverance. They are very, very happy.

"GREEN EYES."

Thank you, Green Eyes, for your nice letter. As to your own troubles, I do think they're mostly because you are young. A long bob does make a girl look little girly, I think, and sweet, too. You are, probably, a little bit sentimental, but that's all right, if you don't let it go too far.

I should judge from your letter that you are as popular as most girls, much more so than many so don't worry about the matter so as to be unhappy At the same time, learn to be enough interested in others to be sympathetic and understanding, and you will never lack friends.

I imagine as you grow older and maybe go to college and meet different people you will learn to grow more sociable. But you need not make a lot of friends to be happy and have a good time. A few congenial souls are better than a number of people with whom you have little in common.

K. C. M.: Thank you for your kind wishes for my success. You have had rather a fluctuating friendship with this young man, haven't you? As you wrote two letters, the note that he may not have gotten on time, and the letter asking him why he hadn't replied to your note, it seems to me he should have answered one or the other or both, if he had wished to continue the friendship.

I think it is distinctly up to him now, unless you think that there is a possibility that he did not receive either, when it would be all right for you to write again.

"Break In" Shoes Prior to Vacation

—By GLADYS GLAD—

In continuing my beauty advice for the vacation days, I wish to impress upon my readers the importance of foot care during this time, especially if the holidays are to include such strenuous activities as hiking, golfing, dancing and tennis playing.

It is the better part of wisdom to be provide with an ample supply of shoes for all occasions. But it is even more important that these shoes fit the feet correctly, and be "broken in" before the vacation time arrives. It's no special pleasure to go hiking in a pair of shoes that are stiff with newness, and that take the skin off your heels before the first mile has been covered. The really smart girl will be prepared for all such exigencies, and will have tucked away in her luggage a soothing preparation for tired and aching feet.

Another item that the careful woman will plan to carry with her is a deodorant, so that she may preserve her daintiness despite the perspiration induced by a vigorous game of tennis or a lengthy trek after a golf ball.

So many vacations mean "roughing it," that hands usually come in for an awful lot of abuse. And there's no need for it, either. Even on a camping trip, the hands may be kept in lovely condition if protective creams and softening lotions are carried and used.

The condition of the water at the place that you plan to spend your vacation is another consideration. Is it hard or soft? Hard water will mean the necessity of some sort of a water softener, such as tincture of Benzoin, or one of the softening meal bags.

The biggest problem for the majority of us this summer will be to keep the ultra-violet rays of the sun from making havoc of the skin of our faces, arms, back and necks. Better look around for the best protective creams right now. It never pays to forget that the things that happen to your skin during the summer usually last well into the winter.

Remember, even our vacation days do not mean a vacation from beauty problems. Solve as many of yours as you can before the boat or train leaves for that chosen spot.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Bleach

Paula: The superfluous hair bleach to which you refer is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia.

Bow-Legs

Lorlee: If you are under the age of 16 years, the exercises listed in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs" may help to correct and shape your legs. After that age an operation is generally necessary to correct bow-legs.

Cocoa Butter

Polly: Cocoa butter is used for fattening purposes. Massage your face nightly with warmed cocoa butter. This will help to fatten the tissues and round out the facial contours.

Rouge

Lorlee: The hues you mention are indeed suitable for a person of your coloring. A good brand of rouge will not harm your skin, providing that you cleanse the skin thoroughly after its use.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For her articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails" and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

MORE THAN 300 BOY SCOUTS ATTEND CAMPARALL IN XENIA

More than 300 Boy Scouts from Tecumseh Area will attend the first all Council Camparall on the Scout reservation in Shawnee Park Friday afternoon and Saturday.

Two hundred of these Scouts or twenty-five patrols will actually participate, while the remainder will be on hand as alternates and spectators. Training of these boys for the Camparall has involved an adult leadership of more than 200 men from Logan, Campaign, Clark, Greene and Clinton Counties during the past six months. It is estimated that forty men will be with the boys during their stay in the miniature tent city here.

Details of the program are being announced by general chairman, H. S. Goodrich, Springfield. They follow: Friday 4 to 7 p. m. patrols encamp; 8 p. m., campfire, and taps at 10 p. m.; Saturday, 6 a. m. reveille; 7:30, breakfast over, police site, and prepare for inspection; 8, assembly, colors and instructions; 9, inspection and campcraft project; 10 a. m. cookcraft project; 12 noon, mess; 1:30 p. m. projects begin; 5 p. m. projects close; 5:30 p. m. retreat; 8 p. m. council fire; 9:30 p. m. break camp.

Scouts not participating in the Camparall and the public are invited as spectators of the events. Spectators are especially invited to the evening council fire meetings.

Wood for the fires is being furnished by a local committee headed by J. E. Baldner. Each patrol will have four pup tents and these will be placed in an orderly manner along the company streets. Positions for the various groups are already staked off according to Chairman Baldner. Straw will be provided so that more comfortable sleeping accommodations may be enjoyed by the campers.

Headquarters will be established in the Scout cabin and there will be two large tents from Camp Miami for officials who will stay with the Scouts while they are in camp. An Indian teepee, the property of the Rev. A. G. Lebold, district commissioner, will be erected as one of the novelties of the Camparall. It will be occupied by E. L. Blackburn, its former owner, and R. S. McBride, Springfield, district commissioner for Clark County.

NAME DEPUTY SCOUT COMMISSIONER FOR TROOP INSPECTION

Inspection of Greene County Boy Scout troops will be conducted upon a more systematic and an efficient basis in the near future as a result of recent action taken by the commissioner's staff of Tecumseh Council and confirmed by the Xenia District Boy Scout committee.

In a detailed report to members of the committee, the Rev. A. G. Lebold, district commissioner for Greene County, recommended that an additional commissioner be added to the staff. On his recommendation Glenn R. Johnson, Fairfield, former Scoutmaster and Troop committee chairman of Troop 54, was elected to serve as deputy district Scout commisisoner and will cover all troops in the county sponsored by American Legion Posts. These include a troop in formation in Jamestown, Troop 54 of Fairfield-Osborn, and the new troop that is being sponsored by Joseph P. Foody Post of the Legion.

H. E. Eichman is the other deputy district Scout commissioner for the county and will visit troops 41 and 43 of Xenia, and 68 of Cedarville. Carl Pramer, Paul McFarland, and Ward Cresswell, are the Scoutmasters, respectively, of these troops. The remainder of the troops will be given the attention of the commissioner.

Both Eichman and Johnson were given their commission in a short ceremony before the Xenia District Scout committee by District Commisisoner Lebold. He also gave the men a souvenir Scouters badge from Memphis, Tenn., where the national Scout convention was held last week.

C. F. Mellage, deputy commissioner for Tecumseh Council at-large, gave a report of the convention in which he outlined briefly the benefits that Scouters are receiving from their contacts with the boys. He emphasized leadership training and the dependability ideas that were vividly portrayed at the Memphis assembly.

Scouts and Scouters all over the Tecumseh Council are preparing for the Camparall to be held here on Friday and Saturday.

Eighth grade graduates are Mary Pauline Marshall, Martha V. Williams, Harry L. Weaver, Thomas Walton Haines and Roy Carle.

Closing day activities will be held at the school Friday, May 22. A cantata, "Uncle Sam's Visit," will be presented at 11 a. m. and a basket dinner will be enjoyed at noon. The afternoon program will consist of athletic events.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute.

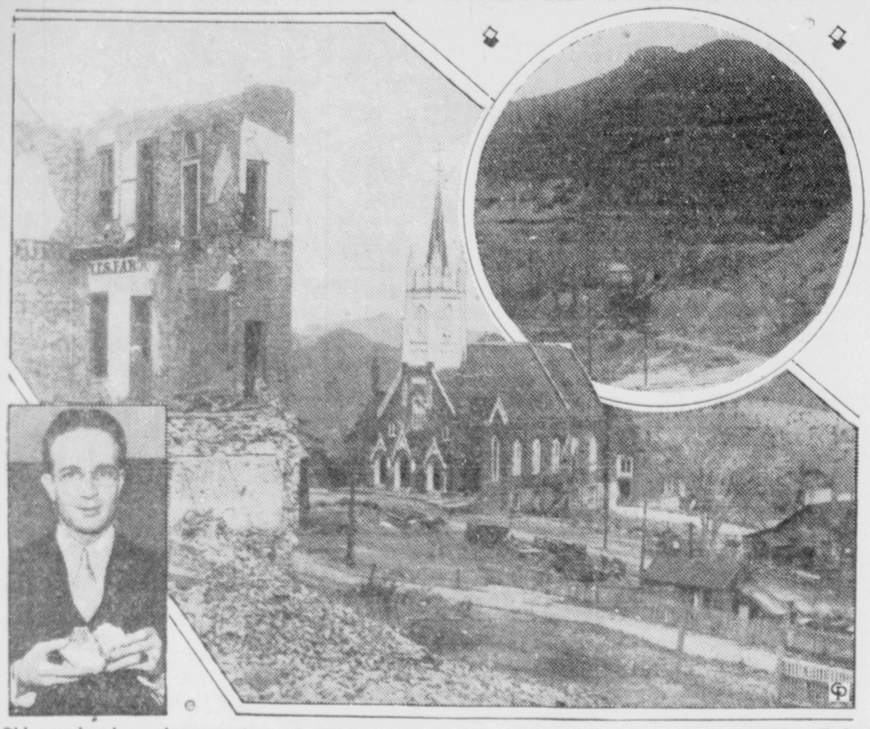
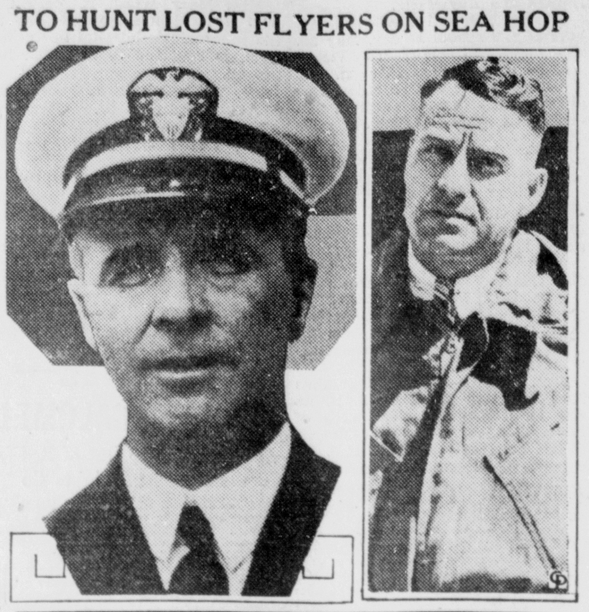
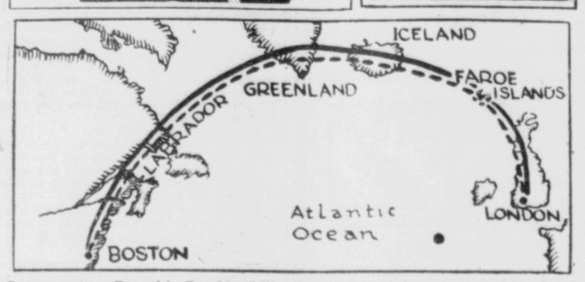
GOLD IN COMSTOCK SILVER LODE REVIVES OLD FEVER



Old sourdoughs and prospectors who rushed to Nevada as fast as stagecoach and pack train could carry them when the famous Comstock Lode, once considered one of the most famous silver deposits in the world, was discovered are impatient to be off again as news comes from Virginia City, Nev., that the famous mother lode is yielding gold. A layer of pure white quartz, carrying chunks of pure gold, has been found just five feet from the bottom of an early mine that had been abandoned as valueless. Estimated value of the quartz is $50,000 per ton. Photos show, top, St. Mary's in the Mountains, a church in Virginia City, built in 1876, when the population was 20,000. Today the population is 600. The partly destroyed building bears the sign of the famous express company of pioneer days—Wells, Fargo & Co. Inset, the hill in which the million-dollar vein was found, and Raymond De Lane, custodian of the samples, examining a piece of quartz.

TO HUNT LOST FLYERS ON SEA HOP



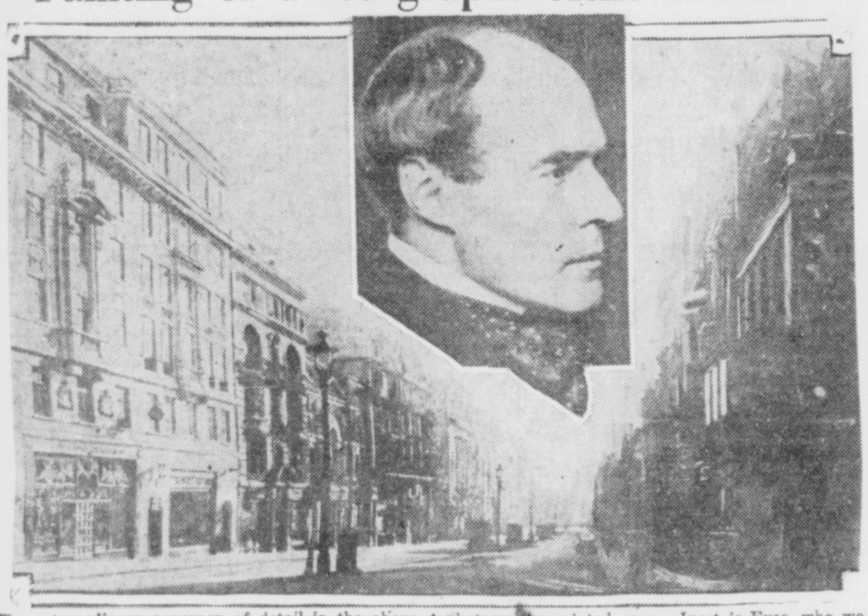


Commander Donald B. MacMillan, veteran Arctic explorer, hopes to find trace of the two Frenchmen, Capt. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli, who were lost trying to fly from Paris to New York, in 1927, when he hops off on his projected flight from Boston to London and return, this summer. He also will attempt to demonstrate the feasibility of airplane travel between the United States and Europe over a route across Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and the Faroe Islands. Commander MacMillan, left, will have Charles F. Rocheville of Los Angeles, right, as his pilot. Map indicates their prospective route.

Police Officials Held for Murder

As an aftermath of the gun battle near Evarts, Ky., in which two deputies, a commissary clerk and a miner were slain when the automobiles in which they were riding were ambushed and fired upon, three police officials of Evarts are under arrest charged with first degree murder. Photo above shows the accused men being escorted to Harlan County jail by State Troopers armed with machine guns. They are, left to right: Police Chief Asa Cusick, City Clerk Joe Cawood and Al Benson, assistant Chief of Police. All are of Evarts.

Painting or Photograph? Asks London



The extraordinary accuracy of detail in the above painting by Reginald Eves, noted British artist, may explain why three of the artist's canvasses were withdrawn from the Royal Academy exhibit. It is charged that the paintings are merely enlarged photographs painted over. Inset is Eves, who wa discovered by John Singer Sargent when he wa only an obscure painter. His election to the Roya Academy has been vetoed by the president of tha august body, Sir William Llewellyn.

She was floated after a few hours without any of the 478 passengers being inconvenienced.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED by Phil

The junior American League baseball team organized by Foody Post this season benefited by a decision of the Hamilton, O., Legion post not to sponsor a junior nine this year.

Paul Fuller, commander of the local post, explains that the Cities Service Oil Co. is equipping 100 junior Legion baseball teams in the United States with uniforms this summer and that ten Ohio teams were eligible to be so outfitted.

All of the ten Ohio teams to be equipped by the company had been selected but when the Hamilton post gave up the idea of putting a junior nine in the field, the offer of uniforms was made to the Xenia juniors.

Commander Fuller said, and we believe him, that he needed no coaxing before he accepted.. And so the fifteen players who are to receive uniforms will report at post hall at 7 o'clock Thursday night to be measured for their new regalia.

The oil company's offer also includes a complete catcher's outfit, a first baseman's glove and a dozen balls.

Outfitted from head to feet, the Xenia juniors should present a snappy appearance when they play their first game one of these days.

Dick Wells, southpaw pitcher, who is a brother of Herman Wells, local softball hurler, just missed twirling a perfect game for the Dayton H. and B. Otto Shoppe amateur nine a couple of weeks ago. For eight innings Dick turned back the opposition with nary a hit and nary a run. Then in the ninth his dream of a no-hit, no-run game faded and there came a sad awakening. Two singles in succession came in the fatal ninth Stoo bad.

A story from Lodon, O., says that "for the first time in harness race history in the midwest, the rubber-band barrier system of race starting will be used there this summer, with the trip device originated and patented by Steve Phillips, well known Xenia race starter."

Steve recently installed one of his barriers at the London track and it is being used by William (Doc) McMillan, noted owner, trainer and driver.

The Phillips barrier, just to jog your memory again, is a simple device. It consists of a rubber band, stretched across the track and attached to a trigger arrangement. The horses are lined up in front of the barrier, which is tripped by the starter, allowing the band to snap across the track, thus giving all horses an even start in the race.

VALUE OF OHIO MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS SHOWN BY CENSUS

COLUMBUS, O., May 14.—The value of products manufactured in Ohio in 1929, the last year in which a manufacturing census was taken, was estimated at almost six billion dollars according to bureau of census figures issued today at Washington.

The total, the figures revealed, was 14.7 per cent greater than the total worth of goods manufactured in 1927, the last preceding census year.

Figures revealed the actual total for 1929 to be $5,999,123,993.

In line with the increase in value of goods produced, the number of wage earners also was boosted although only 10.2 per cent.

Wage earners, according to the census estimate, numbered 737,469, and their pay was $1,103,938,912. This did not include salaries.

Other totals made the following revelations:

Number of establishments, 11,815; number of salaries, officers and employes, 111,854; salaries paid, $301,130,164; cost of materials, $2,901,444,004; cost of fuel and purchased electrical energy, $225,723,721; horse power of electric energy 2,233,458.

The summary of Ohio counties showed Ohio manufacturing for 1929 to have been distributed as follows:

NUMBER FIFTEEN

JACK and ESTELLE

PLANNING TITLE DEFENSE—Jack and Estelle Dempsey go into a huddle early in 1926 to discuss his plans for defense of the heavyweight title against Gene Tunney, the ambitious ex-marine.

NEXT: The Dempseys and Tex Rickard.

Ball Yard Banter

They knocked old Eppa Jeptha Rixey out of the box the other day in his first 1931 start, but that may not mean anything. Eppa has a way of warming up in the middle of the season and holding his own despite the fact that he is one of the oldest flingers in years and in service still actively employed.

Rixey is topped in age by only four flingers — Clarence Mitchell, Jack Quinn, Adolfo Luque in the National and Red Faber in the American League.

Herb Pennock is the only hurler who tops Rixey in continuous service under the main tent. Both men were in Uncle Sam's uniform during 1918 but this year can be thrown out because of the great number of ball players who were in the service at that time.

Wally Schang, a catcher, is also older in years than Rixey.

However, Rixey leads all major league hurlers in games won and games pitched. Eppa has tossed 630 contests to Pennock's 518, which is 112 more games. Eppa has also won 251 games while Pennock's record shows but 212 victories.

Burleigh Grimes is nearest Rixey in number of games won, the Cardinal veteran having copped 243 wins.

Quinn, the oldest player of all, broke into the majors three seasons before Eppa, but Jack didn't stay up there continuously. His big league career has been broken by five years spent in minor company.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, May 14—Industrial stocks turned upward in the early afternoon after a further dip in the rails had unsettled the market and caused the establishment of a new low record for the railroad averages . Outside of a new drop in United States Steel the Bears were unable to make much headway in their "campaign" and with the recollection of last Friday's sizzling rally fresh in their minds, the professionals were inclined to be cautious about extending their short lines. It was the prevailing view that the market was already sold to a stand-still, and in line for a rally of considerable proportions.

WATER GARDENS

Written for Central Press
By DR. KARL F. KELLERMAN
Bureau of Plant Industry
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Water gardens are becoming more popular, even in amateur one-man gardens. Until recently this interesting feature of landscaping was commonly thought to have a place only in the more elaborate gardens. But, as horticulturists of the bureau of plant industry point out, many of our most beautiful water lilies are as easy to grow as the better-known and widely-planted garden favorites; and there is no reason why the small gardener should deny himself this means of adding a picturesque spot to his garden.

Dr. Karl F. Kellerman

The water garden should fit into the general landscape scheme. It must be so situated that its development will not intrude on the development of the other features of the garden. A touch of intimacy is among its charms, which can be emphasized if an impression of seclusion is given by appropriate plantings of moisture-loving plants, nearby in the garden.

Water lilies demand plenty of sunshine. They like warm water, too. This makes it inadvisable, sometimes, to have running water. Containers may vary from halves of water-tight barrels to cement pools. One to two feet of water is best. Set the roots in soil in the bottom of the pool or in tubs of soil lowered into the water after the roots are planted.

Three parts of good garden loam and one part of completely decomposed cow manure thoroughly mixed make a soil recommended for water lilies. Submerge the tops of the plants with their crowns from six to eight inches below the surface of the water.

Plants should not be put into a newly constructed cement pool until the water has been changed several times.

PLAY TOURNEY GAME

Spring Valley High School, representing Greene County for the second straight year in the district class B high school baseball tournament, will play its first tournament game at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, meeting the winner of the Urbana-Gratis contest on the University of Dayton diamond. The Valley nine, which is unbeaten in county baseball circles this spring, has won seven out of eight games. Coach Lane is hopeful his boys will progress far in the district meet.

RIALTO'S LATEST

Looking very much the young miss, Reri, the 17-year-old South Sea beauty, is shown above in San Francisco, en route to New York, ready to be "glorified" by Florenz Ziegfeld, who is giving her a part in his next edition of the Follies. Her home is on the South Sea island of Bora Bora.

WILL PLAY SUNDAY

Rained out of a scheduled game with the White Sox, a strong Dayton colored team, last Sunday, the Xenia Merchants have booked this same team for Sunday afternoon at Washington Park, according to Manager Jess Chambliss. Annually represented by a strong diamond aggregation, the White Sox nine this year is said to be no exception to the rule. The Merchants are undefeated in two starts this season and will strive to maintain their unbeaten status against the Dayton team.

Noted Diva Will Star Again on Met Stage

Despite Her Age, Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink Looks Forward to Achieving Her Greatest Success When She Again Bows to an Audience—More Than Half a Century After Her Debut.

Lovers of opera hail with delight the announcement that Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, 70-year-old world famous contralto, will be heard again on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House. The internationally known singer, whose rich voice has enthralled audiences of many nations for more than half a century, looks forward to her greatest triumph next season, when after three years' retirement from the stage, she will once more be heard behind the footlights.

NEW YORK, May 14.—Those who remember that "farewell" concert tour of Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink in 1927 may recall the flowers and tears with which her audiences bade her goodbye. To those and others it came as good news that the beloved singer, the greatest contralto of all time, although about to celebrate her 70th birthday, will be heard next season in public, as she will again appear on the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House.

To Mme. Schumann-Heink, singing is still the breath of life. Born at Lieben, Bohemia, more than half a century has passed since she made her debut as a contralto in Dresden, in 1878. Fourteen years later she was hailed by royalty when she made her first public appearance in London, in 1892.

"Schumann-Heink" became a name associated with music in Europe and in America. In 1898, responding to the call of admirers in the United States, she made her debut in Chicago, and the name which heretofore was mentioned with admiration in Europe became a sacred name in the hearts of idol worshipers of the entire world. A poor Austrian woman, bending over her washtub and carolling so beautifully that passersby stood still to listen, had arisen and for more than fifty-three years has retained the pinnacle of a singer's career and remained there long after she had become a grandmother.

The inexhaustible energy of this famous woman, who sang for thousands of American soldiers during the troubled days of the World War, thought some contribution was due to American girls. She formulated plans to teach the young women of America how to sing. From all parts of the country women of all ages came to study under her, all hoping that they would follow in a lesser degree their famous mentor and become operatic stars under her guidance.

Mme. Schumann-Heink scoffs at the encroaching years; they do not exist for her. Fatigue? She doesn't know it. Need of rest and retirement may be for others, not for her. Why should she rest when she can bring happiness to countless millions by her voice? Only a few days ago she crossed the continent to Los Angeles to sing at a benefit for the unemployed.

It may even prove surprising to learn that Mme. Schumann-Heink still has dreams of greater glory and one of these is built around her wish to sing the role of Magdalene in "Der Meistersinger." A firm believer that there are always new heights for the artists of the world to scale, this "Grand Old Lady" of the opera, this deity among American songbirds, will continue rejoicing the hearts of her fellow countrymen.

At the Metropolitan Opera House next season this greatest of all contraltos will prove her "youth" in the difficult operas of Wagner's "Ring" triology — "Das Rheingold," "Siegfried" and "Die Walkuere."

FACE COVERED WITH PIMPLES

Resinol clears them away

"My complexion was very poor because of pimples and blackheads which covered my face and neck. I had been advised to try Resinol Soap and Ointment, but had tried so many other things without success I was disgusted with everything. However, a friend urged me to try a sample anyway. In three days' time the improvement was so great I could hardly believe it. I will always have a word of praise for Resinol." (Signed)—

JUDGEMENT SOUGHT; TWO ASK DIVORCES; OTHER COURT NEWS

Suit seeking to collect a judgment for $255.24 recovered against one defendants in the Clinton County courts last March 9, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Allen E. Jay against Clinton W. Jackson and Blanche Jackson.

The plaintiff, claiming the judgment remains unpaid, asks that Charles Madden, as executor of the estate of Andy Jackson, be enjoined from payment of certain money to the Jacksons, named beneficiaries under the will.

The plaintiff requests that the executor, named co-defendant, be required to apply Clinton Jackson's annuity of $250 a year on the judgment and seeks to enjoin payment of $1,300, due Blanche Jackson from the estate as compensation for nursing services. Clevenger and Cartwright are attorneys for the plaintiff.

WIVES SEEK DIVORCES

Charging gross neglect of duty and extreme cruelty, Mattie Riley has filed suit in Common Pleas Court for divorce from Limon B. Riley, to whom she was married March 26, 1903. They have five children, Mamie, Henry Lee and Hazel, all of full age, Pauline, 20 and Nola Mae, 18. Declaring her husband is an habitual drunkard and that he abandoned her last April 27 the plaintiff asks for alimony, attorney fees and custody of the minor children.

Vera T. LeVeck has filed suit for divorce from Bruce LeVeck on grounds of gross neglect and cruelty. The couple was married August 27, 1927. No children were born of the union. Revealing she has separated from her husband, the plaintiff asks for alimony, seeks a temporary restraining order enjoining the defendant from disposing of or mortgaging his property and desires to be awarded a part of the household goods and furniture.

NOTE SUIT FILED

Suit for $700 has been filed in Common Pleas Court by John T. Harbine, Jr. against Fred Woodson, R. E. Bryson and Ella Bryson, the plaintiff claiming the amount is due on a note.

ASK PARTITION

Partition of property is asked in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Florence B. Linkhart against Cyril Linkhart. The plaintiff and defendant each own an equal interest in lot number one of the Howard addition to the city of Xenia, according to the petition. Attorney F. L. Johnson represents the plaintiff.

WINS JUDGMENTS

John T. Harbine, Jr. has recovered the following note judgments in Common Pleas Court: Against Frank M. Liggins and H. R. Hawkins, $110; against Hayse Reed and Daisy May Reed, $198.80.

DEMOCRATS TO MAKE CAMPAIGN ISSUE IS STATEMENT OF FESS

Home for a two weeks' vacation, Senator Simeon D. Fess, Yellow Springs, chairman of the Republican National Committee, was authority for the statement Wednesday that the chief issue in the next presidential campaign will be whatever the Democrats make it.

Declaring he spoke as an individual and not as chairman of the national committee, Senator Fess asserted the Republican party will "stand squarely on the record in office of President Hoover." He added that the President "is doing a magnificent piece of work in attempting to solve the numerous vexing questions confronting the country today."

"In his effort to lead the country out of the economic depression President Hoover is proceeding cautiously and carefully," Senator Fess said. "His efforts will undoubtedly be rewarded with success."

The senator reiterated a previous belief "there is no doubt" about the renomination of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis, "if the latter chooses to run." He intimated, however, that Curtis, former senator from Kansas, may again seek a seat in the senate.

"In this event," he said, "the party has two likely candidates in Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., now governor of Porto Rico, and Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England."

That the depression will have ended before the presidential election was also the senator's opinion.

HIGHWAY DIRECTOR SAYS CONTRACT FOR PIKE PAVING SIGNED

Director Merrell was said to have been surprised by the disclosure Greene Countians had favored concrete construction rather than macadam, declaring that local sentiment had apparently been misrepresented to him.

The highway director expressed regret over the dissatisfaction that exists, but said the contract with the Republic Asphalt Co., Dayton, low bidder for the project, has been signed. The only alternative left, he said, is to resort to injunction proceedings in the courts to halt fulfillment of the contract.

Director Merrell gave the opinion, however, that the proposed type of road construction would prove satisfactory. He said the construction would be of asphalt with a two-foot concrete burm on each side of the highway and that the pike would be levelled by the removal of the "hump" in the center.

Asserting the state highway department has had to practice the most economies, the director revealed that $30,000 had been fixed as the limit to finance new road construction in Greene County, but that it was later found possible to authorize the Dayton-Xenia Pike project at a cost of more than double this amount.

While not willing to make a definite promise, the director also offered hope that two other road improvement projects proposed for this county removed from the state program this year, would be restored.

Director Merrell was optimistic that extension of the concrete construction on the Xenia-Fairfield Pike for two miles into the village of Osborn may materialize and that a new concrete bridge spanning Caesars creek on the Jamestown Pike, would be built, replacing a bridge which collapsed some months ago.

If the Xenia-Fairfield Road extension is authorized, it is considered possible the steep downhill curve leading to the twin cities of Fairfield and Osborn will be eliminated.

The Southwestern Portland Cement Co. has offered the state a new road bed in exchange for the present road bed down the hill. The company, in excavating an adjacent quarry, has virtually levelled a portion of the hill until the decline is gradual instead of abrupt.

There is considerable local agitation, it became known Thursday, for injunction proceedings to halt the proposed macadamizing of the Dayton-Xenia Pike. County Commissioners, however, said they believe a disinterested group of people should take the initiative in the matter, if such action is considered desirable.

DEATH CLAIMS MRS. WILLIAM MCKILLIP

Mrs. Nursie Ann McKillip, 73, widow of William McKillip, died at her home near Jamestown Wednesday evening at 5:30 o'clock. She was born in Fayette County, the daughter of George Washington and Catherine Gordon and had spent her entire life near Jamestown.

Mrs. McKillip was a member of the Church of Christ. She is survived by the following children: Mrs. James Conner, New Burington; Mrs. James Bryan and Mrs. Cash Turner, near Jamestown and Hugh McKillip, at home. Two brothers, Frank Gordon, Jamestown and Rhelman Gordon, near Jamestown, also survive besides six grandchildren and one great grandchild.

Funeral services will be held at the home Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock with burial in Jamestown Cemetery.

PLANES ARRIVE FOR AIR MANEUVERS AT FAIRFIELD FRIDAY

Linking coast to coast, these airports would be the army's supply and refuelling bases should war come. On their efficiency would depend the prime quality for which the air corps are maintained—mobility.

They provide the power which could enable the army to throw troops, supplies, and efficient fighting machines to any point of the nation within twenty-four hours. Their importance, in the opinion of the nation's military leaders, can not be overestimated.

"It would mean little if the army had fast and efficient fighting planes if those planes were unable to serve their purpose because of inadequate landing and servicing facilities," Trubee Davison, assistant secretary of war for aviation pointed out in emphasizing the importance of commercial aviation development.

More than eighty airports, outside of New York, Chicago, Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and more than a dozen other cities, will be called on for servicing and refuelling army planes during the maneuvers. Through these stops and statistical data on hand, the army plans to complete a comprehensive survey of the national commercial airport system during the maneuvers. Records will be filed in war department archives, and, should hostilities ever occur, these ports would all be on military airways.

The airports themselves, in addition to getting a taste of wartime requirements, will be given an opportunity to operate under what aviation enthusiasts confidently expect will be every-day conditions four or five years hence. Army officials believe the airports will profit and that improvements will suggest themselves as a result.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15c, 30c, 60c.

DREAMS HOUSE ON FIRE; AWAKES IN TIME TO SAVE FURNITURE AS DWELLING IS RAZED

A dream came true early Thursday morning for Carl Zimmer, who makes his home with his brother's family on a farm on the Kemp Road, about ten miles west of Xenia.

Zimmer dreamed that the two-story, frame farm residence was on fire. Awakening suddenly about 2 a. m., he thought he heard a crackling sound like burning timber.

Going downstairs to investigate, Zimmer discovered the roof was ablaze. Arousing his brother, Joseph and wife and their four children, who were asleep, he phoned neighbors for assistance.

Meanwhile the flames had gained headway and although the Zimmer brothers and neighbors were able to remove most of the household furniture, the dwelling burned to the ground.

The loss was placed at $3,000 or $4,000, partly or entirely covered by insurance.

The Zimmer brothers believe the blaze originated from a defective flue. They said a fire had been built in the furnace Wednesday night, the first time in several days.

Volunteer fire-fighters, forming a bucket brigade, saved a wood shed twelve feet away from the residence. The fact the wind was blowing in the opposite direction probably saved a large barn and a garage from destruction, it was said. Water used to keep the flames from spreading was obtained from a well near the residence, pumped by a gasoline engine. The water supply was barely sufficient to keep the wood shed soaked until the residence blaze had died down.

KING PRAJADHIPOK HERE

Visiting Siamese Ruler First Oriental Sovereign Received At White House

Queen Rambai, First Lady of Siam

King Prajadhipok of Siam

King Prajadhipok anointing the Queen.

A Personality Sketch
By Central Press

King Prajadhipok of Siam, as you probably know, feels quite at home in American clothes, and takes his golf seriously.

Was only 13 when he was sent to England to attend classes at Elton.

Six years later he entered the Royal Military academy at Woolwich and learned to be a horseman.

On his return to Siam he entered into military maneuvers with such gusto, despite the terrific heat, that his health suffered.

He's the first Oriental reigning sovereign ever to be received at the White House.

Among the more poetic titles are King of the North and South, Supreme Arbiter of Ebb and Flow of the Tide, Brother of the Moon, Half-Brother of the Sun, Possessor of the Four and Twenty Golden Umbrellas.

Has a collection of canes that is unrivalled in Siam and likes to row and take pictures.

Among the eastern innovations in the palace at Bangkok is a movie room and shower baths.

Ascended to the throne at the death of his brother, who left no male heir.

Eighty some automobiles stand in his garage, all painted the national color, yellow.

Went to Paris on his honeymoon with his queen, Rambai, where she was tutored in English and French.

Weighs ninety-seven pounds, eighteen pounds less than the queen.

For the entire trip, except a few hours in Washington, Prajadhipok is traveling incognito as the Prince of Sukhodaya.

His name is pronounced as if it were spelled Pra-chat-ti-pok, with the accent on the second syllable.

CHICKEN VICES PREVENTABLE

As modern brooding practices continue to involve greater intensity of confinement in the constant effort to improve over past methods and to gain control over many factors and uncertainties, a new problem, chicken vices, which may prove more disastrous than the old problems attending range methods, has been introduced. However, there is consolation in the fact that the chicken vices—feather picking and cannibalism—are preventable.

After several years' tests, studies, and observations by D. C. Kennard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station at Wooster, it has been found that special management is the msot effective procedure for preventing these vices. Overcrowding, overheating, too bright day light, empty mash feeders, or anything which contributes to the discomfort or discontentment of the chicks encourages chicken vices. To prevent or correct these primary causes, it is necessary to practice effectively the following measures:

Each 100 chicks should have 70 to 80 square feet brooder floor space, even if they have a sun porch or a sun yard. The cockerels must be removed when 5 to 6 weeks of age.

Overheating can usually be prevented by opening the brooder house to permit a free circulation of air. If the brooder house is lined with matched lumber or insulating board, much protection against the heat of the sun is provided.

Too much bright day light in the brooder house can generally be prevented by covering the windows with brown paper or burlap. During hot weather the burlap must be arranged so as to keep out the excess light and yet permit a free circulation of air through the window spaces and ventilators. Directions as to how to accomplish this will be found in the Station's Special Curcular 28.

By following these measures the Ohio Station brooded 1500 January (1931) hatched pullets in ten groups to 12 weeks of age, when they were transferred to summer quarters, without the appearance of feather picking or cannibalism, except in one lot where some feather picking and a few minor cases of canibalism occurred.

CHAPTER 39

SEVERAL days passed.

Mary again worked late with Foster, on the evening after she had driven out to the Colonial Inn with Frazier for dinner; but Foster did not invite her to dinner with him. He murmured something about an engagement and let Mary go home alone.

He had said to her on the day when he returned from Blair's office, "I saw your sister this morning, Mary. I didn't know she was working in New York. You always talked as if she stayed at home."

"Oh, yes, Bonnie just went to work for Jamesop-Blair a few week ago. It is her first place to work in New York."

"Bonnie—cute name," he mused. "She is a beautiful child, Mary, and doesn't look strong enough to be commuting from away over in Jersey. You shouldn't allow her to do it, knowing what a strain it is. You had to give it up, finally, you know."

"Mother and I tried to dissuade her, but she would try it." She thought, "I made the trip for four years, and I didn't have to come to New York to live because I couldn't stand the commuting though I did get most awfully tired of it. But if he can't see that, let him think whatever he pleases."

"Plucky little kid, all right," was Foster's comment, still thinking of Bonnie's guileless smile and extravagant compliments.

That week, Mrs. Vaughn was taken ill, and had to send for Mary. The trip home seemed interminable to Mary, now unaccustomed to the long ordeal and anxious to reach her mother. Mom must be seriously ill, to have summoned her in the middle of the day, she concluded. The doctor was calling when Mary arrived. She flew up the stairs and stood fearfully at the door of Mom's room for a moment before she pushed it open and entered. Her mother's face on the white pillow seemed to Mary as gray as the tumbled hair about it.

With a little cry of dismay, she had flung herself on her knees beside the bed, her strong, eager arms almost lifting her mother off the bed.

"Mom, darling—what is it? Why didn't you call me sooner?' Tears choked her words. "Doctor Beaman, what is wrong, please?"

The doctor was bruskly cheerful. "Oh, nothing so serious—now. A cold, and grippe. But I suspect that isn't all. She's tired and lonely, Mary. Too bad you girls can't be at home more. I think if you can, you had better stay here for a few days and get her cheered up. Pneumonia could set in if we're not careful. You're the best nurse I know for her—and the best medicine. I'll leave a prescription or two to be filled. Think you could manage to be home for a few days?"

"Why, of course, if Mom needs me, Dr. Beaman. You know I wouldn't work in New York if we didn't need the money. It isn't my choice, but I can earn more there."

"I know," he nodded kindly. He had known the family ever since the twins arrived, when he had officiated. "Your mother tells me that Bonnie works in the city, too. I didn't suppose she could make more money there than she could right here in Paterson, with little experience."

"No," Mary defended her, "but positions are so difficult to find now, that she decided a little was better than nothing.'

"Of course," agreed the doctor. "Well, you girls get busy and cheer Mom up a bit, now," he smiled at the woman whose eyes already were alight with the joy of seeing Mary. He left instructions for the patient and departed.

"Pshaw!" Mom declared, when he had gone. "He don't know so much as he thinks he does. I'm not sick, only a cold that I couldn't seem to shake off. Don't you go staying home now and maybe losing your job just for me, Mary."

"Don't you worry about that, dear. I think I need a vacation, myself, for that matter. It won't hurt Foster to do without me for a few days, so we shall both have a rest and a good visit while you get all well again." She was already busy with putting the room to rights, smoothing the bed clothes and bringing Mom a drink of water.

She went downstairs and telephoned to Foster, who was kind and reassuring. He would do the best he could without her, and she was to remain at home until her mother was quite recovered.

With a sigh of relief, Mary turned from the telephone. It was a sigh of weariness, too. Weariness of body, mind and soul. She felt more than physical fatigue, for it was the utter exhaustion of grief and tangled thoughts. It was good to be home and remote from the struggle. A few quiet days with Mom would restore her mental balance and physical strength.

She looked about her. The house showed evidences of Mom's very unusual neglect. A boy's sweater hung limply over one chair, a cap lay in a corner, soiled dishes were stacked in the sink and little gray dust balls rolled gleefully around the bare floors that bordered the rugs.

Mary first went to the drug store and had the prescription filled. She brought home oranges and lemons, gave Mom a glass of cool orange juice and made a pitcher of lemonade for her to keep beside her, so she would have plenty of water to drink. Then she changed from her office jersey to a house dress, and delved into the task before her.

By the time the twins burst into the house and almost strangled her with their violent greetings, she had the house spic and span and a steaming dinner ready for them.

"Gee, Mary, it's good to have you home," Ted declared. "Aw, say, why did you go to live in New York? Ain't it bad enough to work there every day, without staying there nights, too?"

"Yes, Ted, I don't know why I did leave. But I won't again. I'm staying home for a few days until Mom gets well; then when I do go back to work, I shall come home every night like I used to."

The two almost choked her again, in their delight. Tim said soberly, "Mom ain't like herself when you are gone, Mary. Gee, this house has been like a—well, like a tomb, these few days. Mom felt so bad and—and—" the tears conquered, and Mary comforted him while he bravely sniffed them away.

Bonnie did not come home for dinner that night, so Mary had a long comfortable evening with her mother.

"You are not going to work so hard, when you are well again," she told her, sitting beside the bed and stroking Mom's hand affectionately. "No more sewing. It is too hard on your nerves, trying to please everyone, and working over tedious seams and materials. I'll make up the difference, some way. And I'm coming back home to stay.

"Now you will do nothing of the kind," Mom protested. "You make a baby of me because I have a little cold. I'll be all right in a day or two and you just go along your own way. Don't I know it's a lot better for you not to make that trip back and forth?"

"It is, in some ways. But I get homesick, too, and I need you more than I can tell you, or more than I ever realized. I am coming back to stay with you—always."

Her mother smiled, but there was a glow around her heart, put there by those words, "I need you." There are no sweeter words to a mother whose children are grown and have become self-sufficient. "I hope not," she said gently. "You will have to forget what's past, Mary, and make your life over. I've had to do that. We all have to, some time. You will learn to make the changes easier as you get older. None of life is easy if we love and live and work like it is meant we should. Even the ones who try to get out of the trouble and work, have to face problems some time. But you're not that way, Mary. You take life as it comes and struggle with it. You will win out."

Mary sighed and said resentfully, "It never seems to be that way, Mom. I have so often thought that those who sit back idly and refuse to learn to do everything, seem to live so easily and always get done for them what they can't do. While the people who do everything with all the ardent strength they possess and learn to do anything that is expected of them, have to do not only for themselves but for the people who are willing to let others do for them. They are the ones who have so much expected of them, and the helpless ones get all the sympathy." She thought of Bonnie, of her boastful helpfulness, of Foster's sympathy and concern for her, of his dependence upon herself, who was only made of flesh and blood the same as Bonnie was.

Mom shook her head thoughtfully. "That is what I once thought, too. But I've learned it isn't right, and that you get out of life just what you put into it. I have found that anger and heartbreak and pain that is kept hidden, even though it almost bursts you with the hurt, will bring you more sympathy and admiration than tears and reproaches and resentment will. Tears will more often awake the anger of others than they will bring you pity."

Pulitzer Prize Winner To Give Personal Story

By MILDRED MASON

MRS. MARGARET AYER BARNES, winner of the Pulitzer prize for the best novel of 1930 will tell how an accident caused her to develop talent for writing when she appears as guest artist on the Armstrong Quakers program over the NBC network through station WCKY, Covington, Friday night at 9 o'clock.

Following an automobile accident in France Mrs. Barnes was confined to her bed many weeks and out of pure boredom called for a pencil and paper and outlined her first short story, "Shirtsleeves to Shirtsleeves." It was accepted almost immediately and since then she has written nine other short stories as well as the prize winning novel. She is the wife of Cecil Barnes, a Chicago attorney.

BRINGING UP FATHER

By GEORGE McMANUS

The Theater

All the good will of Hollywood goes with Lois Wilson who is to continue on her comeback in a story by Luigi Pirandello called, critically enough, "As Before, Better Than Before."

Needless to say, it won't reach the screen under this title. Following her hit as the mother of five in "Seed," it is natural that her new story will have a mother-love angle. It centers around a couple who separate and their daughter, who learns to hate her mother's memory.

John M. Stahl, who did a fine job on "Seed," will direct the film for Universal after he completes "Strictly Dishonorable."

A veteran of the films is Gabriel Canzone, an organ grinder who, with his monkey, Josephine, has been appearing in pictures for fifteen years. The pair has a practical monopoly on organ grinder roles on the screen.

No New York street scene is complete without Canzone. At the moment he is appearing in "Women Love Once," a Paramount picture. When the assignment is completed, if another is not forthcoming, he will wander around the streets of Los Angeles and Hollywood, earning money in the conventional way of hurdy-gurdy men. But engagements are never far between. Directors even have shifted their schedules to get the services of Gabriel and Josephine.

Since the gangster must make his exit, the producers, ever opportunists, are going to turn the tide to their advantage. First National, which has contributed some of the best racketeer films, has commissioned Waldemar Young and the redoubtable Wilson Mizner to write a story showing how gangsters can be wiped out. Their labors will result in Edward G. Robinson's next picture, "The World Changes," which will start June 1. Another film on the law-and-order side is Lucien Hubbard's "The Star Witness" which will feature Chic Sale.

Having abandoned the plan of reuniting Greta Garbo and Jack Gilbert in "The Fall and Rise of Susan Lenox," Metro is all ready with another story for Jack. It is "Candlelight," a play from the French of Alfred Savoir. New York saw an English translation two seasons ago and a company headed by Reginald Owen and Mme. Leontovitch did the play later on the west coast before that actress' Broadway hit in "Grand Hotel." "Candlelight" is whimsical and sophisticated, with only a thread of plot, having to do with a four-way masquerade of a master and his valet and a baroness and her maid. Gilbert has just finished "Cheri-Bibi" and the new picture will be his first sophisticated role since that ill-starred picture, "His Glorious Night." Clarl Gable, who is soaring to stardom, will be the Garbo's leading man in the Susan Lenox thing. He went west to do "The Last Mile" on the stage and then played the gambler in Norma Shearer's "A Free Soul." He has also been assigned to play Wallace Beery's pal in "Sea Eagles."

A NEW ICE CREAM QUALITY

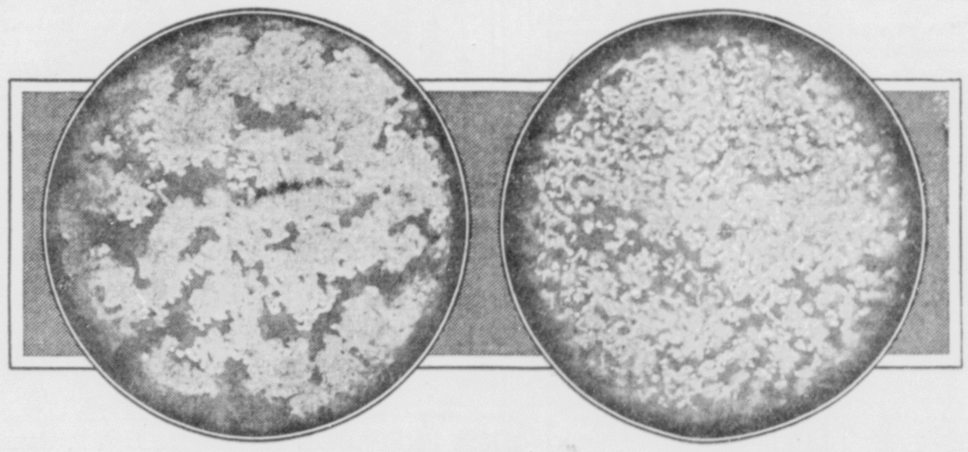
Here it is! A wonderful new method produces a marvelous new ice cream. Now, for the first time the full flavor of sweet cream is released for your enjoyment.

The reason for this remarkable result is easy to understand. Ice cream is composed of crystals. Each crystal contains a portion of the cream and flavor. In ordinary ice cream these crystals are large—much of the delicious flavor is concealed.

In our new "Fast-Frozen" ice cream the crystals are many times smaller. They instantly release all the full flavor of sweet cream for your enjoyment.

Our new "Fast-Frozen" ice cream is hardened at polar cold—frozen in minutes instead of hours. You will be literally amazed at the difference. Never have you tasted such full cream richness—such smooth delightful texture—such delicious flavor.

Our "Fast-Frozen" ice cream is sold in convenient packages for home enjoyment—at no increase in price. Go to our dealer in your neighborhood today and buy a package of this new ice cream—give all the family a real taste thrill.



You can SEE the difference

See how large the crystals are in ordinary ice cream—for this reason they hold a large part of the flavor in. Your taste is actually robbed of full flavor enjoyment.

In Fast-Frozen ice cream the crystals are many times smaller. They instantly release ALL the delicious full flavor of sweet cream for your taste enjoyment.
